The Polish Clergy and the Ecumenical Council—Affairs in Rome—France—American Postage.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—The Russo-Polish clergy have instructed their delegates to the Ecumenical Council to oppose the union of the temporal and spiritual powers, the dogma of infallibility, the injudicious education of the clergy, and an organization of the College of Cardinals, which practically excludes foreigners. The Times to-day speculates on the action of the Ecumenical Council. It expects some concessions to the enlightened sentiment of the age, but predicts that the dogma of Papal infallibility will be decreed. It believes the political aims of the Jesuits will be nullified by the European Governments.

ROME, Dec. 23.—The fourth congregation of the Council will be held on the 30th inst., when the election of the twenty-four members of the Committee on Religious Orders will take place. It is expected that as soon as the committees are completed the discussion of proposals concerning faith will commence....All the Austrian Bishops were received at an audience yesterday by the Empress of Austria. A dinner and reception was given last night by the French Ambassador, at which eighty dignitaries of the Church were present.... The Journal Officiel contains an imperial decree making new postal arrangements between France and the United States. Letters sent direct, of ten grammes weight, require prepayment of sixty centimes; sent via England, seventy centimes. Stamps are to be obtained of the French administration. Insufficient prepayment renders the postage null. The prepayment of all letters carried by the French steamers is obligatory.... The Bourse is quite firm over a rumor that a list of the new Ministry will appear on Sunday. ....The bullion in the Bank of France has increased 6,900,000 francs since last week....The Emperor NAPOLEON has received a diploma as honorary member of the Archæological Society of the Prussian Rhenish Provinces....It is probable the present extraordinary session of the Corps Legislatif will be adjourned to-morrow.

Overend & Gurney Acquitted in England—The Stewart-Gelot-Lopez Case in Edinburgh—Spanish Affairs.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—The trial of OVEREND, GURNEY and others, for fraud, has been concluded, and resulted in acquittal. General satisfaction is expressed at the result. ....The case of STEWART vs. GELOT was tried at Edinburgh yesterday. The facts are that the former refused to pay the latter a sum of money exacted from him under pressure of fear of President LOPEZ, of Paraguay. Among the testimony submitted were the depositions of General MCMAHON, Ex-American Minister to Paraguay, and Hon. H. G. WORTHINGTON, American Minister to Uruguay, which represent the character of LOPEZ as all gentleness and humanity. The evidence was regarded so conclusive that a verdict was given for STEWART.

MADRID, Dec. 23.—The Bishop of Havana has disappeared from Madrid. It is reported that he has gone to France with the Bishop of Osuna, who has openly declared that he does not recognize the Provisional Government, the Regent, or the revolution.

ARRIVAL OF THE CITY OF LONDON AND RUSSIA.

The steamship City of London, which left Liverpool Dec. 9 and Queenstown Dec. 10, and the Russia, from Liverpool Dec. 11 and Queenstown Dec. 12, reached this port yesterday, with five days' later news than was previously at hand.

On the evening of Dec. 8 the subject, "Our Relations with America," was discussed by the Juridical Society of London. The question was brought under consideration in a paper read by Sir GEORGE YOUNG, and entitled, "A proposed statement for decision by an international arbitrator of the differences now existing between the Governments of Great Britain and the United States, arising out of the late war."

A telegraphic dispatch from Marseilles states that on Dec. 9, some houses having been lit up in honor of the fête of the Immaculate Conception, a band of 1,500 persons paraded the streets, testifying their displeasure before the houses which were illuminated, and singing the "Marseillaise" and the "Chant du Départ." They afterward went to the Bishop's palace and to the Jesuits' residence, the sentinel stationed before the former being slightly injured. The rioters then directed their steps to the Prefecture, where they arrived about midnight, and broke some lamps. Several groups were dispersed by a strong detachment of sergeants-de-ville, directed by a Commissary of Police. About sixty arrests were made.

The North German Correspondent of Berlin, known as the organ of Count DE BISMARCK, publishes a long defence of Prussian policy in a recent issue. The article is intended as a reply to a political and semi-biographical article in a late number of the Edinburgh Review, bearing as title the name of the North German Chancellor, and professing to reveal the motives and considerations by which the King of Prussia was induced, in 1866, to declare war with Austria. The reply contains the following important passage: "It is well known to the initiated that Venice had been ceded to France before a shot was fired in 1866, and that on the 12th June of that year, one day after the letter of the Emperor NAPOLEON to the Minister DROUYN DE LHUYS, a convention was concluded between the Cabinets of Vienna and Paris, according to which France, after the overthrow of Prussia, was to be idemnified by compensations, or, in other words, by the left bank of the Rhine."

"The earthquakes at Gross-Geran," says the North German Correspondent, (Hesse-Darmstadt,) "continue. From our last report down to the evening of the 26th ult. the shocks were frequent but slight. On the 27th they were rarer than usual, and on the following day only two were observed. At 10:19 o'clock in the evening, however, without any previous warning, the ground began to tremble far more violently than it had done since the 23d ult. Three separate shocks were distinguished, and they lasted together seven or eight seconds. The sensation is described as resembling what would be felt if the whole surface of the earth were sliding down an inclined plane. No other shocks were observed during the night; but this only increased the terror of the inhabitants, who have begun to look on every cessation of these interesting but uncomfortable phenomena as only a sign that an outbreak of more than usual violence is at hand."

The King of Prussia lately received the members of the Provincial Synod of Brandeburg, among whom was remarked Baron DE MANTEUFFEL. The Protestant clergyman WOLBLING, who headed the deputation, expressed the wish that Heaven might long preserve His Majesty to the Evangelical Church, and realize the Royal intentions relative to the reorganization of that body. King WILLIAM replied in the following terms: "I thank you for your good wishes, and on my side I desire that the work commenced under the auspices of peace may be accomplished tranquilly. For the Church, it was necessary that something should be done to reassure men's minds, for we have many enemies; I do not allude to the Catholics. If we are no longer to believe that the Messiah is the Son of God, what will occur? Sacred precepts will be nothing more than human aphorisms. That is why I renew my wish to see you arrive pacifically at the satisfactory termination of the work you have commenced."

Application was recently made to the municipal authorities of Florence for permission to place a stone in memory of SAVONAROLA on the Piazza dei la Signoria, on the day of the opening of the Ecumenical Council. The permission was, however, refused.

It would appear that a fresh dispute is likely to take place between Turkey and Egypt. Several European and American Governments which have no Consulates in the latter country desire to establish them now that the Suez Canal has opened up a new highway for the commerce of the world. Steps have been taken at Constantinople in order to obtain the recognition of these Consulates, but hitherto the exequatur has been refused by the Porte, on the ground that the Governments which ask for it have no diplomatic agents accredited to the Ottoman Government. Only those Powers already represented in Turkey are likely, it would appear, to institute consular authorities in Egypt. The Independance Belge, which gives the above intelligence, learns from Alexandria that the States interested in this matter will, perhaps, appeal ere long to the great Powers to use their influence in order to overcome the resistance of the Porte.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

Receipt of the Document in England—Its Reference to the Alabama Claims and to Cuba—Views of the English Press, and General Effect.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LONDON, Saturday, Dec. 11, 1869.

By a triumph of enterprise, unparalleled in the history of the English Press, the London Times published an abstract of the President's Message, two columns and a half in length, a few hours after its delivery. How these things must astonish our ancestors!

The Message has given as much satisfaction as it is possible for people to derive from the success and prosperity of their neighbors. The prospect of the war debt being paid off in fifteen years, provokes a comparison with that which has so long been so heavy a burden to the industry of this country, where any idea of the national debt ever being paid is considered a joke—where such an event is no longer expected by any, and by great numbers, is not desired. It is the ballast that steadies the ship, or the sheet anchor that holds her.

The portion of the Message on the Alabama claims is specially distasteful. The President's reasons for not recognizing the Cuban rebels as belligerents indicate to the dull British mind that the English were justified in recognizing the Confederates, since they had all that the Cubans lack to entitle them to such recognition. Then President GRANT says a nation must be its own judge as to its right to give such a recognition. "Just what we say," is England's rejoinder. England is quite ready to pay all reasonable damages; but that, it seems, is not what is wanted. You would rather have an apology, confession and contrition than pay or punishment. Well, Mr. GLADSTONE, Prime Minister of England, has confessed, with shame and confusion of face, that he was mistaken, and I believe he said IN so many words he was sorry for it. How is a nation to make the amende honorable in such a matter?

It seems to me that Americans do not make sufficient allowance for English ignorance of American geography, politics and American matters generally. Four Englishmen out of five would not think it at all out of the way if you told them Alabama was in Chicago. Does not Sir CHARLES WENTWORTH DILKE, M. P., editor of the Athenæum, have the Alleghany and Monongahela Rivers both in Ohio? Have I not explained the injustice done to the genius of JOHN BROUGHAM, because London playgoers had never heard of Powhatan, the Princess Pocahontas, or even their own illustrious countryman, Captain JOHN SMITH? It is a mortifying consideration; but at the beginning of the civil war, nine Englishmen out of ten were as ignorant of America as DANIEL WEBSTER himself, when, under some sublimely obfuscating influence, he exclaimed, "I know no North, no South, no East, no West." All the English knew was that there was a rebellion; and an Englishman's first impulse, when he hears of a rebellion against any Government but his own, is to give it a helping hand. He naturally loves a row anywhere, so long as he does not suffer by it. In Greece, Poland, Hungary, Italy, Spain, he impartially sympathizes with all revolutions. How can he discriminate when he knows nothing about them. Somebody is fighting for liberty and independence, and he hurras for them, and is ready to sell ships, guns, powder, anything they want, to both sides. All this seems to me to be rather amusing. The English did not, as a rule, understand at all the merits of the case; and that they should sympathize with the wrong party, when they knew so little about either, was a sheer blunder. England has been quite enough punished by finding that she favored a losing cause. When the South was beaten, her friends were beaten also. Every sympathizer with the Confederate cause felt painfully enough its humiliation. On the score of sentiment what more can be asked? England sided with Poland, and saw Poland crushed; she sympathized with Hungary, and saw Hungary conquered. She was the ally of Denmark, and saw her despoiled. She prayed that Austria might be victorious, and saw her beaten at Koniggratz. Can President GRANT desire to see a country suffer greater humiliation?

From the result of the war—its effect on England's prosperity—ought to count for something. Eight years have passed and her chief industry sees no revival; her continental rivals are every year carrying off more of her trade; her artisans are demanding protection to British industry; finding this hopeless they will have no resource but emigration. The Suez Canal threatens to give the trade to India to Austria, Russia—to the Greeks and Levantines, if they are clever enough to take it. The colonial system of England is in a threatening position. India is becoming educated—too well, perhaps, to be ruled from a small island on the west of Europe. England is at this moment a greater sufferer from the American war than either the North or the South, for it brought upon her the cotton famine and the Fenians, and she has not got rid of either. Surely, America can afford to be magnanimous. The Monarch sails this day with the remains of GEORGE PEABODY—let her bring back America's forgiveness for an involuntary error—a mere blunder—a sin of ignorance; and considering the state of the country, you might send also a receipt in full of all demands.

The comments of the English Press upon the Message prove that Englishmen are utterly unconscious of having done anything wrong beyond some slight accidental negligence, which they are ready to pay for. If a man does not know, or cannot be made to see that he has insulted you, you only waste your time in demanding an apology. Now the tone of the whole English Press, of all parties, proves that the nation has not, and is incapable of having, any realizing sense of the enormity of its conduct; and as no such sense can be beaten into it, beating is a useless operation.

"President GRANT," says the Pall Mall Gazette, "seems to adopt all the extravagances of Mr. SUMNER. There is no reasoning with it—(the American feeling,) for it does not profess to be based on reason. They were, in a crisis of their fate, eagerly, morbidly anxious for our good-will, and that good-will was, or seemed to them to be, withheld. Where they looked for moral support they found diplomatic coldness. It is this that acerbates their feelings, that plunges them into contradictions, that prevents them from listening even to the great publicists in their own country who assure them that the main complaints have not a leg to stand upon in point of international law, and that equally prevents General GRANT from seeing that the language he employs respecting Spain and Cuba is tenfold more irritating to the country which is trying to put down a revolt than any that he or Mr. SUMNER have ever been able to rake out of any official document of the British Government.

When General GRANT, speaking of Cuba, not only declares that the United States 'entertain the same warm feeling for the people of Cuba in the present struggle that they felt throughout previous struggles between Spain and her former colonies on behalf of the latter,' he says what our Government never said in respect of the Southern Confederates. When he explains that the reason for not recognizing the belligerency of Cuba is that 'the contest has never assumed a condition which amounts to a war in a sense of international law, or which would show an existence of de facto political organization on the part of the insurgents sufficient to justify a recognition of belligerency,' he expresses exactly the questions which our Government took into consideration in deciding to accord recognition of belligerency, when one-half of the Union was arrayed in arms against the other, when a Government was fully constituted by the insurgents, and when the North itself had recognized a state of war by a declaration of blockade. But when President GRANT says, 'The principle is maintained, however, that this nation is its own judge when to accord the right of belligerency either to a people struggling to free themselves from a Government they believe to be oppressive or to nations at war with each other,' we can only wonder that he does not himself see that it is impossible for Great Britain to concede a principle which the United States so firmly vindicate, and impossible for us to apologize for what at the very utmost was a justifiable error of judgment."

The Daily News, an especially friendly journal, uses almost the same language. It says:

"An apology by the nation for the misdirected sympathies of some of its classes would be not only a new thing in international relations, but would be absurd from a foreign country, when in the commercial capital of their own country a similar division of American sympathies took place." MONADNOCK.

THE SECOND EMPIRE.

The New Ministerial Combinations—Scenes in the Corps Legislatif—The French Transatlantic Cable Company—Mr. Washburne and the French Government.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PARIS, Wednesday, Dec. 8, 1869.

The two programmes of the Centre Droit and the Centre Gauche establish such a community of political aims between the Liberal fractions of the Legislative Body, that the reconstruction of such a majority as will enable M. EMILE OLLIVIER to form an administration that will be acceptable to the country, and that will be certain of carrying all its measures, may now be regarded as an accomplished fact. The bases of agreement are these: A new electoral law, which will fix definitively the circumscriptions; a municipal law restoring to the communes the choice of their Mayors; the restriction or the abolition of article 75 of the Constitution of the year VIII, under cover of which individual liberty has been invaded; the constituent power rendered common to the three estates of the realm; the referring to a jury all political offences committed through the medium of the Press; the suppression of the newspaper stamp; the suppression of the right accorded to the Prefects to name the journals in which judicial advertisements are to be inserted; liberty of superior instruction; a parliamentary inquiry into the consequences of the treaty of commerce; and the investigation of all practical means of ameliorating the moral, intellectual and material condition of the largest number.

This programme has received the adhesion of 114 Deputies of the Centre Droit and do of 37 Deputies of the Centre Gauche. It will, of course, be equally supported by the members of the Gauche the Republican opposition, forty in number, who although they do not bind themselves to any particular line of conduct, cannot consistently vote against measures having for object the extension of the liberties of the country. The new administration will therefore have a large working majority in the Corps Legislatif in which it can count securely so long as it adheres to its engagements. The name of M. EMILE OLLIVIER figures among the signataires of the programme of the Centre Droit, therefore the compact is formed. If the Emperor intrusts that gentlemen with the task of forming the Ministry, it follows that his Majesty will be equally a party to the agreement. The reservations made by the Emperor in his message and speech will therefore cease to have any importance. The reign of parliamentary government will be complete and NAPOLEON will be as much subject to the restrictions which bind a constitutional monarch as any sovereign in Europe, Queen VICTORIA and VICTOR EMMANUEL not excepted.

THE BUSINESS BEFORE THE CHAMBERS.

In the Corps Legislatif the validation of the disputed elections which constitutes the motive of the extraordinary session, is giving rise to animated debates. Fifty-five elections are contested—that is to say, about a fifth of the entire number of Deputies of which the Chamber is composed. Most of these are disputed on the ground of administrative pressure, and the facts disclosed thus far certainly have been of the most shameful character. Only one election—that of the Marquis DE SAINT HERMINE, in La Vendee, has as yet been annulled. When the election of M. LATOUR DE MAUBOURG, in the First Circumscription of the Department of the Haut Loire came up for discussion, M. GUYOT DE MONTPAYROUX made an effort to draw out the Minister of the Interior, (M. FORCADE LA ROQUETTE,) who had previously refrained from taking any part in the proceedings. He asked him whether the Government did not regard itself as responsible for the articles published by the journals of the Administration during the elections. On the occasion of the elections in the Department of the Haut Loire, the struggle had been extraordinarily violent. He held in his hand articles from the prefectoral journal which he would not attempt to qualify upon that occasion, but to which he meant to refer on another opportunity. He desired, however, to know if the Government accepted the responsibility of these attacks, or if it was merely the Prefects who were to blame for them. M. FORCADE replied that he was sure the Opposition no more intended to render the Government responsible for those "vivacities" of the electoral period, than the Government meant to render the Opposition responsible for the violent, unworthy and odious attacks which had been made in their own organs. The Government could not control the polemics of the Press in eighty-nine departments, neither could the Prefects watch the details of these controversies, when, between the journals of each side, language of the most regretible description was being daily used.

Let us now take up in the language of the speakers the scene which followed:

M. EUGENE PELLETAN—"Will you permit me to add a question to that which has just been asked by our colleague, M. GUYOT MONTPAYROUX. Assuredly we should always blame and sometimes denounce violent attacks, but more especially falsification and calumnies from whatever quarter they may proceed; but I should like to know from the Minister of the Interior if there does not exist in his Department, under the denomination of the Bureau de l'Esprit Public, a nest of journalists—

A DEPUTY—There is the Bureau de la Presse.

M. EUGENE PELLETAN—Bureau de la Presse—the name signifies but little. It was formerly denominated the Bureau de l'Esprit Public. The name alters nothing as to the fact of the existence of this Bureau. I ask if there does not exist in the Ministry of the Interior a sort of seminary of journalists, [interruption and laughter,] who are dispatched at the period of the elections to all or to many of the prefectures. Following upon their arrival there, there is to be remarked a change in the tone of the polemics of the journals of the Prefectures. There are to be seen in the latter attacks which do not come precisely from the Prefecture or from the seat of the Prefecture, but which are dispatched from Paris by bagmen journalists, (journalistes commis-voyageur,) whom the Minister of the Interior sends down to the departments. [Cries of "Vote," "Vote."]

M. HENRI ROCHEFORT—I will add to what has just been stated by Hon. M. PELLETAN, that the journalists of Government engaged in their controversies absolutely nothing, while the journalists of the Opposition, when they yield to the temptation to use strong language run the risk of fine and imprisonment. Consequently, there is between the two situations a fundamental difference. [Renewed cries of "Vote!" "Vote!"]

The Marquis DE PIRE—The bag-men journalists evidently follow the bag-men candidates. [Murmurs and laughter.]

The Minister of the Interior not appearing to desire to reply, President SCHNEIDER put the question of the admission of M. LATOUR DE MONBOURG to the vote, and the incident terminated.

In the sitting of yesterday, the report on the election of the first Circumscription of the Pyrennées Orientales came up for discussion, and gave rise to a long and exciting debate, in which the Government, for the first time, defended the acts of its subordinates, the case of the Opposition being a weak one. The candidates were Messrs. LOUIS DURAND, EMANUEL ARAGO and DURAU GARRETA. The first-named obtained 13,117 votes; the second, 8,475; and the third, 1 only. The report of the Bureau in favor of the validation of the election of M. DURAND was made as far back as the 2d of July, and the discussion upon it was interrupted by the sudden prorogation of the Chamber. On that occasion M. JULES SIMON accused the Commission of trying to pass in the heap one of the elections most seriously contested. He had taken care, he stated, to apprise the members of the Seventh Bureau that there existed a protest of the most serious description against the election, and that he had in his hands documents which had been forwarded to him as copies of papers which had been previously sent in to the Bureau. He presumed that the protest had been mislaid in the office of the Questor. The report stated that it was only after the matter had been referred back to the Bureau by the Chambers that M. SIMON deposited not, as he pretended, the copies, but the original documents, which furnished to the Commission a complete justification. After entering into a full statement of the facts the Commission terminated its report by declaring that the Seventh Bureau had by a majority of thirteen voices to four maintained the conclusions of the Commission, such as they had been formulated in the beginning of July, and proposed the validation of the election.

A long and exciting debate followed, in which it must be admitted the Opposition had rather the worst of the argument. In the course of it M. HENRI ROCHEFORT again figured on the scene. The incident is sufficiently interesting to be given textually:

Commissaire of the Government—There has been a good deal of talk about an article from a journal which is said to be the organ of the Prefet. I repeat that it is no more the journal of the Prefet than the Opposition journal is the journal of M. ARAGO. They are friends, more or less akilful, who serve the cause. That journal, to my great regret, permitted itself to allude to a sad epoch.

M. EMANUEL ARAGO—You call the 2d of December a sad epoch, merci!

Commissaire of the Government—Sir, I do not call the 2d of December a sad epoch, and your thanks have been expressed in too great a hurry I say that this journal was wrong in making allusion to a sad epoch, when in presence of the terror spread in the Pyrennées Orientales by armed bands, one of which amounted to 10,000 men; by acts of violence and by proved assassinations, the authorities thought it their duty, like General CAVAIGNAC with the National Assembly in 1849, without any voice that I have heard of being raised to protest against it. [Cries of "There were," "There were," from the Left.] At least I know of none. There were voices that I might name, and that did not protest. [Murmurs and approbation.]

M. EUGENE PELLETAN—Those whom you transported defended the law. [Cries of "No! no!" from the Right.]

M. HENRI ROCHEFORT—This is strange! [Murmurs.] This is strange! What! Instead of justifying yourselves, you justify crimes and assassinations. [Violent interruption.]

Cries of "Order! order!"

M. HENRI ROCHEFORT—Against the 2d of December [murmurs] I have never ceased, and never will cease to protest energetically. [Fresh cries of "Order!"

Numerous voices—Continue, continue, M. RICHE.

And the Commissaire of the Government continued his speech.

The election of M. DURAND was validated by a majority of 111 to 86 votes.

THE FRENCH TRANSATLANTIC CABLE.

There is reason to believe that it will not be necessary for Congress to act upon the recommendation contained in the President's Message relative to the withdrawal of the temporary authorization accorded by the United States Government to the French Transatlantic Cable Company. Mr. WASHBURNE has had several interviews with the French Minister for Foreign Affairs on the subject of the refusal of his Government to allow a company of American citizens to land a cable on the shores of France, and I believe that I am justified in stating that the matter will be arranged to the satisfaction of the various interests concerned. Mr. WASHBURNE, I now understand, also, has been instructed to suspend negotiations with the Government here in regard to a special telegraphic treaty with France, and in lieu thereof he has been directed to ask the French Government to join in a convention at Washington to negotiate a general telegraphic treaty in conjunction with all the maritime Powers of the world. In our Minister's recent negotiations with the French Government he had devoted attention to the expediency of providing for the transmission of dispatches for the Press at a low rate, and had obtained from the managers of the French Transatlantic Cable Company an agreement to send Press dispatches at a rate far below any heretofore fixed.

Latest Proceedings in the Corps Legislatif.

M. DE FORCADE LA ROQUETTE undertook on Dec. 9 to interpret the meaning of His Imperial Master's announcement that he would answer for order if the representatives of the people would aid him to save liberty. The occasion was the verification of M. ERNEST DREOLLE'S election, which, being opposed, was defended by the Government. The Minister said: "The Government wishes to establish true liberty; if possible, with the assistance of all. It is aware of the danger by which liberty is threatened, but this danger it faces with resolution and confidence. The Government intends now to make it its glory to found liberty. In this task, though its predecessors have succumbed, the Government of the Emperor sets up a claim to be more successful, better qualified, and more resolute. It looks back with respect upon its past of eighteen years which have given liberty to the country, but at the same time it intends to march onward, and make the empire the definitive founder of liberty in France. This resolution is not a fresh incident; it is the result of acts which have succeeded one another during the last ten years. But to establish liberty two conditions are necessary—prudence and firmness. The country does not want a revolution; it wants a liberal but strong Government, and this it shall have. This is the idea which the Emperor, in his speech from the throne at the opening of this session, summed up in the words: 'For order I will answer; aid me in saving liberty.'" The speech was received with loud and prolonged cheering. M. JULES FAVRE thereupon rose and said he took note of the declarations of the Minister of the Interior, but saw a flagrant contradiction between his liberal speech and the demand that the election of M. DREOLLE should be ratified. The Chamber, by 171 votes against 77, declared M. DREOLLE duly elected.

The Black and Yellow Books—France and her Relations with America, Rome and Germany.

The black and yellow books were distributed Dec. 10 among the members of the Legislative Body. The yellow book contains nine documents relating to the Ecumenical Council, the latest bearing date of the 10th November last; eighteen relating to the Nationality law in Turkey, a report of NUBAR PASHA, a report of the Foreign Commissioners, and eighteen dispatches on the question of the capitulation in Egypt; two dispatches on the European Commission in reference to the Danube, fifteen referring to Tunis, eighteen to Japan, and eight to general commercial matters. Most of these documents concern communications already known to the public.

With reference to the United States, the yellow book states:

"The election of General GRANT could not cause any modification of the friendly relations we entertained toward America. Without being concerned in the questions in which the Cabinet of Washington has been engaged with European Governments, we could only desire a pacific solution of these difficulties, and we have taken every opportunity of making known our wishes to that effect. The wisdom of the Governments concerned has justified our hopes, for none of the complications which were feared have arisen. All ending, afterward to the difficulty between Spain and the Republics of the Pacific, the yellow book expresses the hope for an early settlement, also for the termination of the war between the Brazils and Paraguay, where the French Government has not abandoned that strict reserve it had imposed upon itself."

"Thanks to the tranquillity which prevails in the Pontifical States, Bishops coming from every part of the world will be able to assemble in Rome, where the Pope has convoked, at the Vatican, an Ecumenical Council. Most of the questions which will be discussed on that occasion do not come within the jurisdiction of the political Powers, a fact which constitutes a manifest difference between the present and past centuries. The Government of the Emperor, relinquishing, consequently, the traditional privilege of the Sovereigns of France, has resolved not to interpose in the deliberations of the Council, by sending an ambassador accredited to the assembly. This determination has appeared to it to be more in conformity with the spirit of the age and the nature of the present relations between Church and State. Our intention is not, however, to remain indifferent toward acts capable of influencing greatly the Catholic population of every country. The ambassador of the Emperor at the Council of Rome will be ordered, if necessary, to communicate to the Pope our impressions with regard to the progress of the debates and the import of the resolutions adopted. Moreover, the Government would eventually find in legislation the necessary powers to protect the basis of our public law, but we have too much confidence in the wisdom of the prelates assembled at Rome to think that they will fail to consult equitably the necessities of our time and the legitimate aspirations of modern nations."

Alluding to the commercial relations of France with America, the yellow book mentions the suppression of the surcharge on imports in French vessels, but regrets that the Government of Washington has not recognized the advantages of international free trade.

With regard to Germany the Blue Book says: "The position of affairs in the North German Confederation and the States of South Germany has not undergone any perceptible change. We have not discovered in the questions which have engaged the attention of the German cabinets during the past year, that there is any motive to abandon the reserve which we observed in the face of the changes brought about beyond the Rhine. Our relations with Germany have never ceased to be of a friendly character."

THE ECUMENICAL COUNCIL.

Papal Allocution in the Sixtine Chapel—Points for Settlement at the Preliminary Meeting.

The Pope is reported by the Rome correspondent of the Times to have addressed an allocution to the assembled Bishops in the Sixtine Chapel. He assumed in the opening that the Council had been called to provide suitable remedies for the many evils that have invaded the Church and civil society in these days. Both have to be rescued and preserved, and the Apostolic See alone can do it. He spoke of all the tribulation he had to suffer for Christ, and the comfort he found in the presence of so many brethren bound by every consideration to be perfectly united with him. But he anticipated reunion, blindness, worldliness, stupidity and disposition to be offended at doctrines difficult to the human reason, or humbling to human pride. There were still among us the counterparts of those lowminded folk of Galilee who left the Preacher because His sayings were hard. He even expected the enemy sowing tares, and causing divisions in the flock. He felt himself, like the Apostle to the Gentiles, in daily conflict with them that are within as well as them that are without. The burden of everything was thrown upon him, and he looked for comfort where he could. In these trials and afflictions he naturally identified himself with his Master. When asked by Master, the Apostles would not. Whom else could they go to? He had the words of eternal life. They went about with Him always, everywhere, only leaving to return; however differing among themselves, yet one with Him. So he implored all to forget differences, to avoid them that caused offences, to come to the centre of unity—the House of the Lord, the Hill of Zion, the heavenly Jerusalem. He besought all to be of one heart and one mind, and assured them that they who were of God would hear His voice now. It was no neutral or moderate course that he could be content with; they who were not with Him would be against him, for their allegiance would be sharply tested. The proposition to be made, so he implied, would be such as to leave no doubt who were the friends and who the foes of the Apostolic See. PIUS IX. is wont to speak warmly and emphatically, and he was not wanting to this occasion; but it remains to be seen whether even the Catholic world will carry its sympathy to the extent of sacrificing all its convictions, and abandoning the use of reason, for his sake. Upon this point I may observe that every day and every hour one hears of Bishops who are disposed to think for themselves, and are expected by their flocks to do so. People talk of the democratic associations of the American Bishops. There is even an English Bishop who has read enough, and thought enough, to be able to call his soul his own. As for the French Bishops, they may easily find their place in the Allocution above mentioned. The Pope, all say, can command a majority, but it is one he dare not use. By the bye, I now hear the Bishops declare they will not stay after Easter, and would rather leave the work unfinished. I have this morning seen several of the Orientals shivering in the blast. It will be the turn of others to suffer next June. As for the points to be settled at the preliminary meeting, they may be thus summed up: 1. In the event of the demise of Pius IX., the sittings of the Council are to be suspended, and his successor will decide whether it is to be continued, prorogued or closed. 2. The Bishops are not to take part in the election of a new Pope, which is to be conducted exclusively by the Cardinals, as hitherto. 3. The officials of the Council, (secretaries, under secretaries, notaries, &c.,) are to be appointed direct by the Pope. 4. The form in which the deliberations of the Council are to be conducted will be decided upon at this preliminary sitting. 5. The right of initiative is to rest with the Pope alone; and no motion is to be brought before the Council without his approval. 6. A certain number of the Bishops are to be appointed, judices querelarum, and to have the power of arbitrating on all disputes which may arise among the members of the Council. 7. The proceedings are to be conducted as rapidly as possible, in order that the dioceses may not remain too long without their Bishops.

SULTAN AND KHEDIVE.

Full Version of the Firman of the Sultan to the Viceroy.

The following is translated from the French version of the firman addressed by the Sultan to the Viceroy of Egypt: "It is needless to say how great is my solicitude for the important province of Egypt, and for the increase of the well-being and security of its inhabitants. While devoting serious attention to maintaining intact the internal privilege accorded to the Egyptian Administration, it is my duty at the same time to watch over the strict accomplishment of the obligations of that Administration, both toward my crown and toward the inhabitants of the province. I have therefore accepted the explanation that you have given (the second person singular is used all through the document in the original,) and the engagements you have entered into relative to arms and ships of war, as well as with regard to the foreign relations of the province, by the letter which you wrote under date of the 10th Djemazi-ul-evvel, 1286, in reply to that which my Grand Vizier had addressed to you by my sovereign order on the 18th of Rebuil-Akhir, 1286. The financial question, however, being a vital point for the whole country, if the payment of taxes is beyond the means of the taxpayers, or if the product of those taxes, instead of being devoted to the real wants of the country, be absorbed by useless expenses, you expose yourself incontestably to incalculable dangers and losses. It becomes, therefore, the sacred and imprescriptible right of the Sovereign of the country to watch with solicitude that important object, and that there may be no doubt or misunderstanding in the matter, I have decided to give you the following instructions, which will be equally made known to all. Thus, according to the fundamental conditions on which the actual administration of Egypt is based, all taxes and dues must be levied and collected in my name. I could not, therefore, consent in any manner that the sums resulting from these taxes should be employed otherwise than for the real wants of the country, and that its inhabitants should be charged with new imposts without a legitimate and recognized necessity. My absolute will is then that your most incessant care and zeal be directed toward these two important objects, as well as to the necessity that my subjects in Egypt be always treated with justice and equity. In like manner foreign loans, involving for long periods the revenues of the country, I cannot allow to be contracted without a full explanation of the reasons which make recourse to them necessary being submitted to my Imperial Government, and unless my authorization be previously obtained."

Fire in Havana—Police Searches—Forty Prominent Cubans Banished to Spain—The Gunboats at Fortress Monroe.

HAVANA, Dec. 23.—A large fire occurred last night on Prado-street, which is generally supposed to be the work of an incendiary. An inflammatory proclamation has been circulated in the city, calling the Havanese to fly to arms and aid the insurgents fighting in the interior. Many houses, generally belonging to prominent Cubans, were searched last night by the Police. Forty well-known citizens have received peremptory orders to leave for Spain in the Cadiz steamer which sails to-morrow. Among the banished are RICARDO and ENRIQUE REPANTE, SERAFIN PACHECO, SILVERIO JORRIN, EMILIO CESPEDES, CARLOS FONT and FRANCESCO MESTER. These orders will probably be followed up by the transportation of all suspected or guilty parties of prominence. It is supposed that these measures will put a finishing blow to the insurrection. A Cuban was arrested yesterday for trying to induce some Catalan volunteers to shout "Viva Cuba!" He will be tried by Court-martial. The tenor of the news from the interior is unfavorable to the insurgents. Many are soliciting pardon, and where they continue to resist, the troops are slowly but surely driving them back. A battalion of Catalan volunteers arrived to-day from Spain. The steamer Yazoo sailed to-day for Philadelphia.

FORTRESS MONROE, Dec. 23.—Twelve of the Spanish gunboats came up to the Roads at 11 o'clock this morning, and anchored, but were shortly after signaled from below and went out again.

The Samana News in San Domingo—The St. Thomas Negotiations—Matters in Hayti and Jamaica.

HAVANA, Dec. 23.—The news of the lease of the Bay of Samana to the United States caused intense excitement among the people of St. Domingo. The revolutionists are making efforts to overthrow BAEZ before the American Congress can ratify the arrangements for the lease. BAEZ'S troops have taken Cariel Volta. Two of CABRAL'S Generals, who were captured, were immediately executed....Reports from St. Thomas say that negotiations for the cession of St. Thomas and Santa Cruz to the United States have been reopened.... Information from Hayti to the 9th inst. has been received. SALNAVE now holds only the City of Port-au-Prince. The revolutionary President SAGET has informed the foreign representatives at the capital that five war vessels are coaling at St. Marks for the purpose of proceeding to blockade and bombard Port-au-Prince. The land forces will attack the city simultaneously with the fleet. SALNAVE has threatened to burn Port-au-Prince before he will surrender. One dollar in gold was worth $4,000 in Haytian currency. The English war steamer Cherub brought SALNAVE'S mother and friends from Cape Hayti to Port-au-Prince.... Advices from Jamaica to the 9th inst. are at hand. The Chief Justice refuses to grant a certificate to the Government declaring the seizure of the schooner La Have and her cargo legitimate or reasonable. The steamer Estralla has arrived at Cape Hayti from Mole St. Nicholas in distress, having broken her back at sea. She was only saved through the courage and presence of mind of one of her engineers, Mr. LEWIS.

The Caldwell Extradition Case in Montreal—Samuel L. Blatchford Called.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

MONTREAL, Dec. 23.—In the Caldwell case to-day, SAMUEL L. BLATCHFORD was examined for the prosecution. He testified that the manifest of the bark Jenny, and the affidavit of the master, of date Oct. 2, 1866, were certified to by him, and were drawn up in the proper forms. High Constable BISSONETTE deposed as to the arrest of CALDWELL at Prescott on the 8th of December, upon the warrant of Judge COURSOL, indorsed by PATRICK MCCRAE, J. P., of Prescott; that the prisoner on being arrested claimed the right of a Canadian citizen, saying that he had resided two years on this side. This closed the case for the prosecution. For the defence, FLAVIAN CRANE, sister, and ELIZABETH ROBERTSON, cousin of the defendant's wife, swore that during 1866, 1867, 1868 and the two first months of 1869 prisoner lived in Brooklyn and Saugerties, and only removed to Canada in February of this year. They, however, admitted that he had spent a good deal of time on this side. Further evidence will be taken to-morrow, and the case will likely be disposed of then. The charge with regard to the King drawbacks will not be entered into until Wednesday, to allow witnesses to go home for Christmas.

Arrest for Extradition—Bonded Warehouse Frauds in Montreal.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 23.—JOHN O. ROBINSON was arrested here yesterday, under the extradition treaty, on a charge of incendiarism, committed at Summerville, Mass....It is reported that Mr. SWINYARD has resigned his position as General Superintendent of the Great Western Railway, and that W. K. MUIR, of the Michigan Central Railroad, has been appointed to succeed him.

The Campaign—Remarkable Financial Problem—Wholesale Execution—War News and Miscellaneous Gossip.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HAVANA, Saturday, Dec. 18, 1869.

The Havana Press continues to give its hopeful and rose-colored versions of the war, varied occasionally by threatening leaders against persons in arms and those who sympathize with the revolution. Plans are proposed by the thousand to finish the insurrection, but they all remain plans, and the Cubans continue in the field. The motto of the Havana Spaniards is almost the same as that of the Havana Cubans: "Vox et praeterea nihil;" in marked contrast to the motto of the Cubans from Puerto Principe, Bayamo and other portions of the Eastern Department, who fully carry out that "Qui mori didicit morire dedicidit."

FINANCES.

There is a very remarkable circumstance connected with the Cuban revolution, which may be considered without precedent in the history of nations. In 1866 the failure of Bossier's Bank, the temporary suspension of other banks and the immense exportation of specie to pay for the war with Santo Domingo, the Government grasping every dollar that went into the Treasury and taking great care to owe for almost everything it purchased, had brought the island to the verge of financial ruin. A general crisis was looked for and partially took place; arrangements of the most curious nature were entered into by importers and dealers, and all transactions rested on the foundation of hope and the expectancy that in time the dealers would be able to pay off their indebtedness. In the Fall of 1868, when no disturbance was expected and all classes tried to free themselves from indebtedness, the revolution broke out in Yara, and as a natural consequence every banker, merchant and tradesman quaked in his boots at the sign of approaching utter ruin and calamity. But nothing of the kind has taken place. The Spanish Bank has issued millions and millions of worthless currency, the only guarantee of its ultimate redemption being the promise of a bankrupt Government to pay its debts whenever it may be able to. But knowing these facts and aware of the real condition of the Treasury, and also of its utter inability to redeem its promise for a long time to come if ever, the people take these notes readily, no objections are raised, and spite of the demand for specie, the notes are resold at two to two and one-half per cent. discount against gold, the highest rate paid having been five per cent. Even the United States with its solid guarantees and stable Government could not maintain its currency at the same rate after fourteen months of war. This proves beyond a doubt that the confidence of the Spaniards and foreign merchants regarding the ultimate triumph of the Spaniards and a flattering future for the island remains unshaken. The dealers and wholesale grocers, as well as those in the dry goods and other lines, have not only met their engagements since the war, but they have also reduced their former indebtedness to a considerable extent, and in many cases liquidated it altogether. We hear nothing of failures or suspected merchants, and in the midst of an undecisive war of ruin, incendiarism, cruelty and desolation, commerce flourishes and confidence is unshaken. This is a very anomalous state of affairs, but such are the facts and they merit the deepest attention.

WHOLESALE EXECUTION.

About ten days ago two Spaniards belonging to the volunteers and keeping a little store at Juan y Martinez, in the Vuelta Abajo, and who, it is reported, insulted some ladies, were found dead in their houses. The assassins were hunted for, but no clue to their identity could be discovered and nobody could be found to give any testimony. Captain DURANONA, of the Second Battalion of Havana Volunteers, hit on an ingenious plan to discover the culprits. Forming a circle of all those arrested, about sixty in all, he demanded if anybody was willing to testify, but nobody answered. He then ordered a sergeant to lead six of them into the yard and shoot them. A volley was heard and the sergeant returned, stating that they were dead. DURANONA asked again if anybody would speak, but all remained silent, when he ordered another half dozen to be taken out and shot. Again a volley was heard, and again the sergeant returned with the announcement that the six had left this world of trouble. The third time the question was put when a mulatto stepped forward and said: "Captain, I am innocent, but I was asked to commit the deed, or to help to do so by such and such men," pointing them out among the prisoners. As soon as this declaration had been given, the door was thrown open and in marched the twelve men, who had been confined in a neighboring room, but not a hair on their heads hurt, the troops having merely fired a volley in the air in order to frighten the men inside. A court martial was held immediately, and ten men were condemned to death and executed summarily. It is reported that they all confessed their crime. One was a native of the Canary Islands named J. R. MENDOZA. The others were EUSTAQUIO ARENCIVIA, JAIOBO MONTANO, CIRIACO and CRISPINO ALVAREZ, brother Cubans, and five colored men.

WAR NEWS.

Captain-General RODAS has issued an order compelling all persons having properties belonging to the confiscated estates, or owing to parties whose property has been confiscated, to report the facts in the case to the properly-constituted authorities under penalty of being liable to trial by court martial. In Remedios letters bring advices that the insurgents have burned two sugar estates in the vicinity. No military movements of importance have taken place in this jurisdiction during the past week. Two skirmishes of little note between Sagua and Villa Clara are all that are reported from that section. General CARBO at last dates was at Sagua, after having visited the different ports within the limits of his command. General PUELLO, at Puerto Principe, reports but few rebels in that section, the impression being general there that large bodies of insurgents have gone thence toward Las Tunas and Holguin. General VALMASEDA, according to recent news, was on his old war path between Santiago de Cuba and Manzanillo. This General has urgently asked reinforcements of General RODAS in order to wind up the war in that quarter at once. Insurgent bands still make their appearance from time to time in the hills surrounding Trinidad, though no scrimmages have occurred there. General GOYENECHE, at the head of 600 troops in the Maron Parish, east of Remedios, occupied some intrenched camps with no loss to the troops and a very slight one to the insurgents. The regulars captured some seventy horses, provisions, salt, &c. At three points in this parish, as one of the results of this raid, 300 insurrectionists presented themselves to General GOYENECHE. The rebels are estimated to be 2,000 strong between Remedios and Nuevitas, in this district, and are commanded by General ACOSTA. They adhere to their usual tactics—building good intrenchments, which they vacate on the first approach of the Spanish troops. The capture of a Haytian steamer near Santiago de Cuba by the Spanish man-of-war Fernando el Catolico, some days ago, on suspicion of being engaged in landing arms, has been magnified by a Sagua journal into a naval action, the Haytirn being a Mexican man-of-war. La Voz de Cuba copies the above as authentic. QUASIMODO.

HOLIDAY GIFTS.

Still Another Group of Advertisers and Their Goods—Britannia Ware, Watches, Jewelry, Cuckoo Clocks, Furniture, Toys, &c.

To-day will conclude the sales of Christmas goods, and there will doubtless be a great rush to the various stores to procure them. In previous issues we have given our readers a fair idea of where the best purchases may be made, at low figures, and this morning we present still another column, which will be found of equal interest and value.

Britannia Ware.

THE MERIDEN BRITANNIA COMPANY, NO. 199 Broadway. At the extensive establishment of this Company there may be found, at all times, a most extensive and elegant assortment of tableware of the best quality and perfect finish, all of which is admirably adapted to the holiday trade. Among the articles that will attract the attention of purchasers are their superior patent porcelain-lined ice pitchers and baking dishes, decidedly unique in their way, and most appropriate for holiday presents. Their tableware is electro-plated, made of nickel silver and fine white metal, manufactured after a newly-patented improvement, by which those parts most exposed to wear receive an extra coat of silver three times the usual thickness. Any one who observes the manner in which the silver-plating on the back of the handle, the heel of the bowl and points of the bowls of spoons, and the handles, the breast and points of forks usually wear off, will see at once the great advantage derivable from electro-plating after this method, which is fast superseding the old way of plating, as it gives to the article all the advantage of treble plating entire, while the advance in cost is small—$1 50 per dozen on table spoons and forks, and seventy-five cents per dozen on tea spoons. All kinds of metal ware may be found at No. 199 Broadway, where both dealers and individuals are supplied with goods in any quantity directly from the manufactory in West Meriden, Conn.

Stereoscopic Views, Opera Glasses, &c.

JAMES PRENTICE, No. 164 Broadway, has a superb assortment of opera glasses, eye glasses, microscopes, spectacles, magic lanterns and a thousand and one other things, from which suitable selections may be made for the holidays. QUINCHE & KRUGLER, 8 and 10 John-street, are closing out their stock of watches at wholesale prices, thereby offering extraordinary inducements to purchasers. This house has the sole agency for the celebrated watches manufactured by BOREL & COURVOISIER, which have taken the first prize in London and Paris expositions. Nickel watches are made a specialty of this firm, and are selling off rapidly.

T. B. BYNNER & CO., No. 189 Broadway, have an excellent assortment of watches, Swiss, English and American, and jewelry in all styles. Dealers especially will do well to examine their stock.

A gold pen and holder is a very appropriate Christmas present. FOLEY, No. 262 Broadway, has them of gold, silver and pearl, ranging in price from $2 to $50. Pens from $1 to $5.

ADAMS, CHANDLER & CO., No. 20 John-street, have suitable articles for presents, manufactured from Gorham metal, which they are selling at remarkably low prices. Their extensive stock is well worthy of inspection. The assortment of tableware is as fine as any in the City.

Good Things for the Children.

ORANGE JUDD & CO., 245 Broadway, have "just the thing." If any one wishes to set the youngsters all aglow with joy, let him or her purchase at JUDD'S a box of CRANDALL'S building blocks. With these may be constructed churches, bridges, castles, steamboats, velocipedes, windmills, almost anything, in fact, that a boy has ingenuity enough to put together, and when any one of these articles is built it may be carried about without falling to pieces. We know of nothing in the toy line more suitable as a present to children than a box of blocks—and this is sufficiently alliterative to cause it to be easily remembered. JUDD & Co. have many other things in their varied and extensive stock that holiday purchasers will also do well to examine. "Dandelion Time," a beautiful picture, (chromo) may be had at this house.

The Great American Tea Company have put up choice packages of their excellent teas and coffees for holiday presents, and say, very truly, that "no holiday table will be complete" without their cheering but not inebriating productions. They have just received cargoes from the new crops of China and Japan, and offer their merchandize at the lowest prices. All that is necessary is to leave an order at any one of their numerous stores, and the choice supply will be forthcoming.

L. SONBORN & CO., Nos. 96 and 98 Fulton-street, have imported some of the best wines, brandies and other liquors for the holidays.

Few presents are more appropriate for gentlemen, old or young, than a handsome walking cane. Articles of this description of all styles of finish, varying in price from 50 cents to $50, may be obtained at A. COX'S SONS, No. 25 Maiden-lane, where there is a most varied assortment, manufactured especially for the holidays. These are of Malacca, ebony, rosewood, and other materials, and are mounted with gold, silver and ivory, according to the taste of the purchaser.

M. M. BACKUS, No. 238 Broadway, offers at retail, during the holiday season, as fine an assortment of furs, plain and fancy, as can be found in this City. Sable, mink, seal, Asiatic lamb, and every other variety of skin, may be had here at moderate prices. There is nothing more acceptable to a lady than a rich set of furs, and, if any of our readers design "doing the handsome" in this particular, they will do well to call on BACKUS, and make the purchase.

New boots and shoes are always in greater demand during the holiday season than at any other time. CANTRELL, No. 241 Fourth-avenue, has a stock of all kinds and at all prices. No purchaser can visit his store and come away dissatisfied with the treatment he receives there, or with the cost or quality of his purchases.

GROVER & BAKER'S sewing machine should not be forgotten among the multiplicity of things which make useful as well as ornamental gifts.

WHEELER & WILSON'S, for those who prefer it, is equally appropriate.]

It seems that the British ship Vascata has beaten the short trips by sailing vessels from Yokohama to San Francisco, mentioned yesterday. In 1867 the Vascata made the run in twenty-three days.

The Minnesota farmers have raised this year 6,500,000 bushels of corn, against 4,807,477 last year, and 12,000,000 bushels of oats, against 7,582,461 last year, and both crops command better prices than last year. They also raised 20,000,000 bushels of wheat, against 15,250,000 last year, and although the price of this is low, the four crops will realize nearly $2,000,000 more than last year.

Governor HOFFMAN expressed regret at his inability to attend the dinner of the New-England Society in Newburg, and sent kindly greeting to the members whose pride of birth, he said, is shown in their celebration of the anniversary of the Pilgrims' landing, and whose sound common sense was proved when they deserted the bleak shores of New-England for the fertile banks of the Hudson.

A man now wealthy says that when years ago he opened his little country store in New-Jersey he adopted the practice of selling molasses at two and sixpence per gallon; and so long as he was in trade he never deviated from the figures. It was his advertisement. People for many miles around spoke of him as the man who sold molasses at "two and six," and it carried a sort of reputation into regions where his name did not penetrate, and brought him many customers.

The proprietor of a drug store in Menasha, Wis., employed a man named NYE to superintend the building of a new store, and NYE, when he felt thirsty, went to the drug store for whisky. His spells of thirst were frequent, and on settlement NYE demanded an itemized account, and then entered a complaint against the druggist for retailing liquor without a license. The men of Menasha, indignant thereat, administered a coat of tar and feathers to NYE, and thereby brought disgrace upon their town and NYE nigh unto death's door.

"Albion" entreats us to appeal to English youth to remain in their own country, rather than to seek situations here as bookkeepers, salesmen and clerks. The American youth, he says, are by education better fitted as a rule for such positions here, and naturally will have the preference shown them by intending employers; and, speaking from experience, he advises those who have served in London counting houses, &c., to let well alone, and to refrain from emigrating to these shores "where a premium is set only upon the mechanical and laboring classes."

Captain HALL, of the ship Orion, has written a letter to Captain CAULKINS, of the Arkwright, in which he exonerates him from all blame in relation to his ship, the Orion, and says that Captain CAULKINS did all that he could ask or expect under the circumstances. It will be remembered that the Arkwright fell in with the Orion when most of the crew of the latter were down with the scurvy, and dispatches from San Francisco have given the impression, thus proved to be unjust, that Captain CAULKINS did not extend that aid to the vessel which the humanity and good name of American seamen demand.

GEORGE PEABODY must have been a great heart-smasher in his youth, and his path must have been strewn with broken pledges. Nearly every State claims a lady once young who might have shared his great fortune with him. Rhode Island is the latest to put in this claim. The lady in this instance gave up Mr. PEABODY, with his wealth and brilliant prospects, and married her "young American lover, with a moderate income;" but "her fair cheeks lost their roundness and grew wan and pale, her lovely eyes had a mournful wistfulness that touched every heart,"—and must have been very gratifying to "the young American lover" with a "moderate income."

THE CHINESE EMBASSY.

Brief Abstract of the Burlingame Embassy's Progress as Chronicled This Week to be Done.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

There seems to be a vast amount of misconception in the popular mind as to the real objects of the Burlingame Embassy, and in your editorial of Sunday last you assume that Mr. BURLINGAME has somehow allowed himself to be used by the Emperor of China as the apostle of the "do-nothing policy," or, as you phrase it, "to announce or intimate what he would not do, and why he would not do it."

I was visiting the late Envoy of the United States at Pekin, when WENTSUNG, the most distinguished Chinese statesman of the present régime, asked Mr. BURLINGAME to represent China at the courts and capitals of all the Treaty Powers. The Prince KUNG, the uncle of the present boy Emperor, TUNG-CHI, was very earnest in his expressions, and said "he felt convinced that the oldest Empire in the world ought to bring herself into more intimate relations of friendship and amity with the 'great Republic of America and with the European Powers having treaties with China." Mr. BURLINGAME asked me to send a telegram to the President of the United States relating that "he had accepted the mission in the interests of his country, of civilization, and of Christianity, and I believe from that moment to the present he has labored unceasingly for the interests of the United States as well as the interests of all the countries having treaties with China, as by the "favored nation" clause, any treaty formed by any nation with China is availed of by all the other Treaty Powers.

There has been a vast amount of nonsense ventilated in the papers both here and on the Pacific slope, about English jealousy of American progress in China, and somehow our late Minister, J. ROSS BROWNE, is looked upon as the friend of the "cut-throat policy," as John Bull's old method of dealing with the colonists is called. A great injustice has been done to Mr. BROWNE, who left Pekin after receiving the most flattering expressions of regard from the Foreign Office and from Prince KUNG.

It should be borne in mind by persons writing articles about the vast Chinese Empire that almost everything in the Orient is absolutely different from everything in the Occident. The present political situation there is complicated from the fact that the Emperor rules through his uncle KUNG, and naturally enough the Regent and his immediate Cabinet do not wish to institute too sweeping reforms until TUNG-CHI attains legal age, sixteen; this will occur next year, 1870, when the Emperor will no doubt take unto himself his first and great wife, "the wife of the right and the wife of the left," and an innumerable number of concubines after the fashion of Cathay. If Prince KUNG and his Cabinet should progress too fast ere 1870, the Eunuch influence, always dreaded at Pekin, might get the upper hand, and the Prince and his friends, who are the true friends of progress, might be very politely requested to take gold-leaf, the aristocratic method of self-immolation in China, and similar in that respect to hari-kari in Niphon or Japan.

His Excellency KUNG is a very astute Chinese statesman, and he knows perfectly well, as I wrote you from Pekin in 1867, that China must now go forward or must perish. He also knows very well that a certain Fabian delay at times is the highest evidence of statesmanship. WENTSUNG and the men who rule the Empire pro tem., fully share in his views. When the proper time comes, you and all the rest of the world will see ample evidences of real progress in China, and you will see that Mr. BURLINGAME never had "any bundle of unpleasant truths to unpack."

Writers for the Press have a good deal to say about "China opening her rivers to our gunboats and steamers." Do we open any of our great rivers or lakes to the English or any other commercial nation? Do we permit, in sailing the voyage from New-York to San Francisco a coasting voyage, although made around Cape Horn? and do we not guard our commerce in such stupid ways that just now it has almost died from a species of Congressional strangulation?

During a residence of eight years in the very heart of China, American steamers passed up and down the Yang-tsy-Kung, and really enjoyed privileges not recorded to Chinese craft of any kind. There are many other entering wedges of progress at work and the Burlingame Embassy will bravely push them forward, undeterred by the impatience of friends or the sneers of covert or open foes. JASPER.

Homeless Young Men—A Questions Waiting Settlement.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Your valuable article on "Homeless Young Men," in your issue of the 19th inst., has renewed the desire long felt to help that large and important class by extending the usefulness of the institutions established for their benefit. The one day in which these young men, upon whom to a great extent the future of our City depends, feel their homeless situation is the holiday—whether that be Sunday or other legal holiday. Then they have no longer the resources of their employment, they have no comfortable place to read or otherwise occupy themselves; many are too poor to pay pew rent, and too proud to thrust themselves into our churches uninvited. If our reading rooms, the Mercantile Library, the Christian Association, the Cooper Union, would open their doors to these young men the benefit would be incalculable. As it is, they are driven to surreptitious lounging in barrooms and lower dens. In April last the request here following, signed by a number of the members, was presented to the Board of Directors of the Mercantile Library Association:

"The undersigned, impressed with the necessity of affording to the young men of this City, members of the Mercantile Library Association, the opportunity of spending their leisure hours where they may have the advantage of moral and intellectual improvement, and where they may be free from the temptations of vice, request that the reading room of the Library be opened on all holidays, including Sundays, from 2 to 10 P. M."

This proposition had already met with the approval of many thoughtful persons, and a general expression of its value from the Press of the City. It recommended itself so strongly to the directors of the Association that they passed a resolution in its favor with entire unanimity. But the Board thought it necessary to refer it before further action to the Clinton Hall Association, whose tenants they are. The Clinton Hall Association again referred the subject to a Special Committee, and this Committee, though nine months have elapsed since the time the request was made, it has not yet come to any decision. In the TIMES of March 25, you justly remark in regard to this request that it is not easy to see on what grounds it can be refused: "A very large proportion of those for whose benefit it (the Library) exists can get no other time for its use, and what possible harm can come from it no one has taken the trouble to point out or even suggest."

I should be sorry to believe that the gentlemen on this Committee intend to avoid a decision. Will they not "take the trouble" to consider a question which involves so much of benefit to a large class of our community? C. C.

Complimentary Resolutions to Otto H. Coop.

A large number of the citizens of the Thirteenth Ward assembled last evening at the residence of OTTO H. COOP, Esq., Ex-School Commissioner of the Second District, corner of Columbia and Rivington streets, for the purpose of presenting to that gentleman a series of resolutions complimentary to his faithfulness and efficiency while in office. The resolutions were handsomely engrossed by Mr. D. STANTON, Third-street, and inclosed in a massive oak frame thirty-six by forty inches, richly gilt. The names of the Presentation Committee are as follows: James H. Irwin, M. D., President; Thomas Kenny, Secretary; Frederick Holstein, George N. Severs, Alfred Headden, Henry Tice, Wm. H. Anderson, Peter Wolf, James Mooney, Thomas Kenny, Conrad Rey, Aaron Browning, John Byrnes, Andrew J. Smith, Washington Thomas, Adonijah H. Brummell, John Sigerson, John H. Rapp, Geo. W. Bowne, Patrick J. McAleer, William F. E. Hartkapf, Rufus L. Martin, Isaac Wells, Andrew J. Case and Ira Starr. The presentation address was made by Ex-Commissioner SMALL, and handsomely and appropriately responded to by Mr. COOP. Speeches were also made by Ex-Commissioner MILLER and others, and the evening was very agreeably spent with toasts, songs, music and friendly conversation, and refreshments.

Modifications of the Tariff—Action of the Committee.

From the Boston Advertiser.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, Dec. 21, 1869.

The Ways and Means Committee is not likely to do much more with the Tariff bill until after New Year's. What it has accomplished to this date can be told in a short paragraph. Pig iron is put at $7 instead of $9 per ton, and scrap iron at $6 instead of $8, and the number of articles under the last head is considerably reduced. The classifications of manufactured iron have been materially changed, but whether the rates are, on the whole, higher or lower, or about as before, it seems impossible to determine, some members of the Committee saying that they are increased, and others holding that they are not. Steel is fixed at three cents per pound specific, instead of mixed specific and ad valorem, as at present. Steel nails are not disposed of, but will probably be 2½ and a half cents. Salt is not finished, but it may be stated that the movement to reduce the duty has broken down, and present indications are that it will remain at eighteen and twenty-four cents per pound. The duty on nickel has been largely increased. That on sugar will not be materially changed; coffee comes down from twenty five to twenty cents per pound, and tea, from five to four cents. The whole list of spices has been revised and reduced and on many articles the reduction is considerable. The rates on drugs have also been revised and a large number go on the free list. Oils have been readjusted, some go on the free list and others get increased duties. Tobaccos are not finished and it is not possible to guess how they will finally stand. Cotton and its manufactures go over for further consideration. Coal might possibly get on the free list but that those who favor the annexation of Canada think it best to retain the present duty. Hides are likely to be kept where they are in deference to Western interests. Work on the bill is more than half completed, but the measure isn't likely to be reported till toward the end of January.

THE ERIE LITIGATION.

Argument of Mr. Field in the Ramsey-Erie Suit.

A motion was made three days ago in this case to set aside the orders of Judge MURRAY suspending FISK, GOULD and LANE, with a bare minority of the Erie directors, from their positions, and enjoining in the most stringent terms those directors and the Erie Railway Company from taking any steps to set aside those orders. This motion was argued by Mr. FIELD on behalf of the Erie Railway Company and the suspended directors, and presents the subject from the Erie standpoint. The following is Mr. FIELD'S argument:

Mr. FIELD said—If the Court please, this is one of those cases of which it is difficult to speak with patience. And if I should betray impatience in what I have to say, I crave your indulgence, for I intend to speak of parties and counsel with entire respect. There are two questions before you, one of which is whether we are rightly here; and the other is whether, being here, we show these orders to be improvident, irregular and invalid. In what situation are we? A Judge of the Court has granted ex parte orders. We could not appeal. The learned counsel opposed to us know that. We all know it. No remedy, remains, therefore, and no means to get rid of the orders but by moving to set them aside. This is the usual course. When an order of arrest is granted without notice a motion is made to set aside; when an injunction is issued without notice a motion is made to vacate. And so in respect to every provisional remedy. Before whom should he make the motion? He should move before the very first Special Term he can find. He looked at the printed pamphlet containing the arrangements by the Judges of the Terms and Circuits, and he found that the first Special Term after those orders were served upon us, on the 24th of NOVEMBER, was to be held at Morrisville by Mr. Justice PARKER, and he said: That is the place for us to move; we will make our motion there. Was it not our right to do so? Was it not our duty? Who has the right to say that we should not go there, or that to move there is a disrespect to any other Judge? Has it come to this, that a plaintiff may get an ex parte order and say you shall not apply to me, except by going hundreds of miles at an inconvenient season to an inconvenient place to find the Judge who granted the order and there make the motion? We gave notice of motion as every order can be made before a Judge regularly assigned, and then Sir, we wanted a stay in the meantime. Had we not a right to it? The gentlemen are apparently so ignorant of the business as not to know that if these injunctions had been literally obeyed, the Erie Railway Company would have been bankrupted on the 24th day of NOVEMBER. By the rules of the company no bill can be paid without the approval and order of one of the officers suspended and enjoined by these ex parte orders. There could not have been a check signed that day, nor a dollar paid out, except with this approval. This injunction being served at 12 o'clock, if the suspended and enjoined officers could not have gone on and signed vouchers, not a dollar could have been paid, and hundreds of thousands of dollars of the Company's obligations would have gone to protest. Is this the mere question of practice? Is it possible to speak of it with moderation? Men who will obtain such orders under such circumstances are not fit to have control of anything in which others are interested. I think a conspiracy more wicked has hardly ever come to the cognizance of Courts. That Ramsey and his abettors should have dared thus to attempt to prevent the payment of obligations maturing on that day, due to innocent persons, laborers and others, is a crime so atrocious that one cannot speak of it except with a degree of warmth scarcely suited to a Court of justice. Well, Sir, we had to get an order to stay proceedings. From whom? From any Judge. I have said to Mr. Justice MURRAY himself, I have said to other Judges, that there is not a Judge in the State of New-York who would not have granted that stay. And Mr. Justice MURRAY himself has avowed that he would have granted it in an instant. We had the right to go to any Judge we could find. We should have gone to a Judge in the City of New-York; but it so happened, fortunately, that there was a Judge in the District where, and we applied to him. At that time, Sir, only the order of suspension and of injunction had been served. The order for receiver, the plaintiff and his attorneys kept carefully concealed in their pockets, intending, no doubt, by a coup de main to serve the Treasury of the Company, before we could know anything of their intention to do so. We got by accident notice of the order appointing a receiver very shortly after. What then did we do? We went to Mr. Justice CLERKE and he gave us an order staying all proceedings for six days, to enable us to apply to a Judge of this district. Then we went to Mr. Justice PARKER, and although stretched upon a sick bed, yet was willing in view of the circumstances to grant us an order staying all proceedings until the motion could be made. The stay was our right. It was no favor. We asked no favor of any one. Under the law of the land, no administrative officer or Judge has a right to this stay; therefore we are here. You are now, in judgment of law, sitting at the regular Special Term of the Court in the place of Mr. Justice PARKER, who, being too ill to hold the Term, has sent you to take his place. And we now say to you, as we should have said to Mr. Justice MURRAY, if before making these orders he had seen fit to give us the opportunity of being heard. We say then in the first place that the plaintiff shows no right in any way to maintain this suit. The title of the plaintiff is not well pleaded. He alleged no title whatever other than by saying that he is a creditor of the Erie Railway Company. Suppose a man were to sue another on a judgment for some certain sum of money, upon an allegation that he is "the owner and holder of a part due claim for money against, and legally payable by, said Company?" Is that a sufficient allegation upon which to call for an answer? He does not say how much a due him, nor for what cause, nor where accrued, nor when payable? It is alleged that he holds bonds of the Company. What kind of bonds, or for what amount or when payable, is not stated. They may be, for aught that appears, indemnity bonds or something else upon which no claim whatever exists for a dollar. But in the next place suppose the title of the plaintiff well pleaded. I deny the regularity or validity of the orders. I say they are irregular and invalid, every one of them. First, I deny that an order of suspension can be made ex parte at all, or even upon motion, for the reason that the revised statutes do not provide that it shall be made before trial and judgment. That provision originally passed in consequence of the decision of Chancellor KENT in the Utica Insurance Company's case, allowing the intervention of a Court of Equity in the internal affairs of corporations, but did not give to a Court any power whatever to judge except upon the hearing. In the next place, if it were otherwise, that remedy has been taken away, as a provisional one, by the code, which defines and regulates all provisional remedies. There are no others. I insist, therefore, not only that there is no authority for a suspension ex parte, but that there is no authority for any suspension upon motion even, until trial and judgment. By "provisional remedies" we mean remedies before judgment. Now let me pass from the question of suspension to the question of receivership. A receiver ex parte? Why, Sir, cannot one go to bed at night without fear of waking in the morning to find a person in possession of his property, claiming to be receiver appointed ex parte over night, and that by the law of the land? If it be, the sooner the Legislature intervenes the better. But I insist that it is not the law, and never has been. The next objection to these orders is that they are obtained upon hearsay. We are, however, told that there are two facts appearing by this complaint which are not on information and belief, namely, that there has been an excessive issue of stock, and that there were no meetings of the Board of Directors from July, 1868, until July, 1869. Those are the two facts which the gentleman says are not upon information and belief. That I deny. Everything upon information and belief. Everything in the complaint, except the alleged debt to the plaintiff, is upon information and belief, for the language upon folio six is this: "For a cause of action against the defendants, the plaintiff, upon information and belief, further states." But suppose the two facts mentioned to be positively sworn to, he claims the increase of stock is evidence of misconduct. Has not, within the past year, the stock of the Central Railroad been increased from twenty-eight millions to fifty millions, and is that a legal reason for suspending Vanderbilt and all his associates? Then as to the allegations that there were no meetings of the Board from July, 1868, to July, 1869. What if there were not? You are now asked to remove these men from offices which they hold under election of October, 1869; and four of the persons suspended by this order never were Directors until that election, and, for aught we know, never heard of the Erie Railway Company until the day they were thus chosen. You are asked to suspend them upon an allegation of misconduct in somebody else previous to that time. Was ever anything more preposterous? But even as to the three others, GOULD, FISK and LANE, who were in office before, does their present title date back beyond last October? What, they did before, even if reprehensible, which we deny, would be no reason for suspending them from their present offices. It would not prevent a reelection. What right has the MONEY to interfere? He is interloper. He has bought in, or pretended to have bought in, new, as a stockholder, and creditor, at the last election; or he has become so since. If he has become so since, he has no right to interfere in this way. If he was so before, why did he not do something to prevent their reelection? They are trustees, reappointed in October, 1869; and can they be called to account for transactions before October, 1869, which the stockholders knew at the time of reelection, and, of course, approved? These stockholders expressed their confidence by a reelection, with scarce a dissenting voice. But Mr. RAMSEY comes in and says, "Never mind, the stockholders did not know what they were about," and "I, RAMSEY, who ran the Susquehanna Road, know a great deal better what is for the interest of the stockholders of the Erie Railway than they did," and turning to the Court, says: "I wish you to disregard the decision of the stockholders by turning out of office those whom the stockholders put in." Suppose you were to remove these gentlemen, and the stockholders were to reelect them—what would you do then? Can you make an order that the stockholders shall not vote for them? The true theory is this: You can suspend or remove directors only for malfeasance in office during the term for which they were elected. I do not say that if they have any property in their hands for which they are bound to account that you cannot make them give it up. On the contrary, I admit their liability to account for every dollar and every act. But that is not the point here. You cannot suspend or remove them from office to which they were elected, except for acts done during the time for which they were elected. This is all that I need say by way of reply. The arguments of my associates in the opening are, in my mind, unanswerable; but I will not repeat them. The case, after all, is in a narrow compass. If you were applied to now, and had heard this argument, would you grant these three orders? If you would not, there is an end of the case. If you would, you must still act them aside, and let the parties apply again because of irregularity in applying ex parte. And we ask you, in the name of the citizens, the rights of this Company, the rights of these directors, by vacating these improvident orders.

CHRISTMAS IS COMING.

The joyful festival of Christmas is near at hand. To-morrow's noon ushers in the glorious day which commemorates the nativity of the world's Redeemer. As usual the Catholic and Episcopal Churches are being profusely decorated in commem thing with the paupers, as their business was worse than the leprosy. At the last election he seven fifty and sixty of these paupers were brought to the polls to vote. They were able to vote but too lazy to work.

The substitute was adopted.

The salaries of the Superintendents of the Poor were fixed at $4,000 a year each from January next.

The Board then adjourned.

CHARITIES AND CORRECTION.

Meeting of the Commissioners—The New Hospital—The Night School—The New Lunatic Asylum—A Keeper of the Penitentiary and Assistant Physician and a Medical Inspector Appointed.

This Board held a meeting yesterday afternoon, General JAMES BOWEN, President, in the Chair.

It was reported that the new fever hospital on Blackwell's Island was now ready for occupation, and the Board resolved to ask the Committee on Medical Examination for instructions regarding the transfer of patients to the new hospital.

Dr. T. H. TRIPLER sent in his resignation as assistant physician to the epileptic hospital, which was accepted, and Dr. J. W. ROSS was appointed in his stead.

EDWARD CUMISKY was appointed Keeper of the Penitentiary on Blackwell's Island.

A resolution was passed that every physician, on completing his term of service, should be presented with a case of surgical instruments.

MATTHEW MURRAY and JOHN W. WALTON, inmates of the schoolship Mercury, were designated as recipients of the Kelly medals.

Dr. J. A. COLLINS was appointed Medical Inspector of the institutions under the charge of the Commissioners.

It was reported that fifty-seven per cent., or 268 convicts, in the Penitentiary were attending the night school recently established there.

The Wardens of the different institutions were directed to give their personal attention to the economical use of gas in the institutions.

The Comptroller was directed to place at the disposal of the Board $100,000, for the erection of the new lunatic asylum on Ward's Island.

The receipts from contingencies during the past month were reported $630 24.

COMMON COUNCIL.

Board of Aldermen.

The only business transacted by this Board yesterday was to fix the salaries of the Clerk of the Board of Assistant Aldermen and the Deputy Clerk of the Board of Aldermen at the same sum as that now paid the Clerk of the Board of Aldermen.

Board of Assistant Aldermen.

This Board met at 2 P. M. yesterday.

A communication was read from the Comptroller stating, in answer to a resolution of inquiry, that the pier at the foot of Twentieth-street, North River, was let in 1865 to HENRY B. FRANKLIN at $1,500 per annum.

The resolution authorizing the Comptroller to purchase the premises in Twenty-seventh-street, near Ninth-avenue, for Police purposes, was reconsidered and laid over.

Resolutions were adopted to lay Belgian pavement in Seventy-fourth-street, from Third-avenue to Avenue A; in Twenty-ninth-street, from Broadway to Eighth-avenue; in Thirty-second-street, from Tenth to Eleventh-avenue; in Thirty-sixth-street, from Seventh to Eighth-avenue.

The usual resolution to pay each of the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, and the President of each Board of the Common Council $1,000 for services rendered, was offered, but subsequently withdrawn.

The Board then adjourned.

CHESS.

The New-York Chess Club Tournament—Dr. Jones vs. Captain Mackenzie.

The following beautiful game occurred on Wednesday, at the New-York Chess Club Tournament, between Dr. JONES, formerly of Washington, D. C., and Captain MACKENZIE, the former receiving the advantage of pawn and move, (remove black K B P from the board:)

Captain MACKENZIE is undoubtedly the finest chess player in the United States, and it will afford us pleasure to publish some of the games which he has won.

Action of the Board of Police—Promotions and Dismissals.

At a meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners yesterday, the Detective Squad attached to the Central Department was constituted the Thirty-fifth Precinct of the Metropolitan Police District, and JAMES J. KELSO was appointed its Captain. Captain KELSO has been connected with the detectives for many years, and since the dismissal of Captain YOUNG has been in command of the squad, first as Sergeant and afterward as Acting Captain.

Patrolmen HENRY YOURY, of the Twenty-sixth Precinct, and JOHN GATES, of the Fourteenth, were dismissed from the Department. YOURY is the officer, whose case was fully reported yesterday, who was tried for compounding a felony and whose name was erroneously printed as Young.

Attempted Assassination.

At 11:55 o'clock Wednesday night while Officer MICHAEL GRIFFIN, of the Second Precinct, was patrolling John-street, from Broadway to Cliff-street he was suddenly startled by the report of a pistol behind him, and the whiz of a bullet close by his ear. He instantly turned, but could see no one, and all subsequent search for the person who had attempted the cowardly assassination proved fruitless.

Rencontre with River Thieves.

About 5 o'clock yesterday morning, Officers ROONEY and FALLON, of the Twenty-first Precinct, discovered two boats at the Thirty-fourth-street dock, East River, one containing three men, and the other two. The officers watched, and presently they saw the men attempting to board a sloop, but just at that moment discovering the officers, they hastily pulled into the stream. The officers being joined by Officer BERKAKLI, of the same Precinct, now proceeded up the docks to that at Thirty-ninth-street, when they again espied the boats at the moment the men were about to cut the lines of the barge William Semmes. They called upon the thieves to surrender, and for answer received several pistol shots, which the pirates fired as they dropped into their boats again, and began pulling off. The officers returned the fire, delivering nine shots in all. Two men were seen to drop from their seats into the bottom of the boats. The thieves, however, pulled out and escaped, as the officers had no boats with which to pursue them.

The Johnson-Bradley Bond Case—Further Complications—Both Men Held for Trial.

Justice HOGAN yesterday stated that there was probable cause to hold both JOHNSON and JEROME BRADLEY. In JOHNSON'S case $25,000 would be required, and if counsel for BRADLEY waived an examination, bail would be fixed at $20,000.

Counsel for BRADLEY adverted to the singular aspect of the case, his client having been required to answer the same complaint before two magistrates and then give duplicate bail. The magistrate reminded counsel that he had no official knowledge of the proceedings before any other magistrate, and must proceed on his record. The matter was finally settled that BRADLEY waive an examination and enter his protest on the papers.

Justice HOGAN also gave notice that on Monday next he would entertain a complaint against BRADLEY for forgery, in order that counsel might take such action as his client's interests might suggest.

Both JOHNSON and BRADLEY failed to give the bail required, and BRADLEY was also temporarily committed to await examination on the charge of forgery. Thus a new element has been introduced into the case, making it still more complicated and perplexing.

The Lewis Kidnapping Case.—A Further Postponement.

This case came before Judge CARDOZO again yesterday. The mother and child for the first time appeared in Court. Ex-Judge BIRDSEYE appeared for the father, and asked an adjournment for the reason that he had not yet been able to examine the petition.

Mr. HOWE, on behalf of the mother, objected. Judge BIRDSEYE, he said, did not represent any party to this proceeding. The writ of habeas corpus was directed to Policeman NAPOLEON WOOLRIDGE and Captain JOURDAN.

Judge CARDOZO said that inasmuch as Judge BIRDSEYE appeared for a party who desired to intervene, he should not exclude him. He thought all the parties in interest ought to be allowed to come in.

Mr. HOWE said he objected to the delay only because the mother was here ill, and away from her home, which is in Boston. She was enduring great physical suffering, and was here at considerable expense.

The hearing was finally postponed until Friday morning.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT—EASTERN DISTRICT.

Before Judge Benedict.

COLLISION—TOWBOAT.

The Security Insurance Company vs. The Steamboat Alida.—This case was tried together with an action in behalf of the Mercantile Mutual Insurance Company against the same vessel, pending in the Southern District. The two cases were brought to recover the injury caused to the cargoes of two canal boats, the Emma Davis and the William Burr, by their being run against the steamer Borussia while they were being towed by the Alida, on Sept. 16, 1869. The Alida had two barges in tow, on each side of her, and a hawser tier of thirty boats, arranged in five tiers, and a sloop and two barges in another tier astern. The tide was ebb, and the Borussia lay at anchor in the middle of the North River, off the dock of the Hamburg steamers. The Alida passed her to east, but did not succeed in carrying the hawser tiers by in safety, these two barges being brought in collision with the Borussia's stern.

The defence of the Alida was that the Alida was passing the Borussia at a proper distance to east, when a sudden squall arose which drove the Borussia to east and into the tow, and that the collision was caused by this fortuitous occurrence.

Held by the Court—That as it was not claimed that the collision was caused by any fault on the part of the canal boat, the only question is whether it was caused by negligence on the part of the Alida; that on the evidence the defence is not made out, but that the pilot of the Alida did not exercise such precaution as he should have done.

Decrees for libelants, with references.

PROPELLER—TURNING SCREW WHILE AT A PIER—NOTICE.

Patrick Bahan vs. The Steam Propeller Leo.—This was a libel by the owner of the canal boat Aimtra to recover for the loss of the boat, which was sunk in the slip at Pier No. 10, East River, on April 12, 1869. The canal boat was lying at the bulkhead, sufficiently to guard against all the ordinary forces of wind and tide. The Leo was lying in the slip and was about to sail. Her stern was forward of the canal boat, about forty to seventy-five feet off. About three-quarters of an hour before she sailed she put her screw in motion to test it. It was eleven feet nine inches in diameter, and, revolving thirty times in a minute, it set a strong current of water in motion, which parted the canal boat's lines, and whirled her round, and dashed her against the bulkhead and sunk her. No notice was given of the intention to start the screw. As soon as it was known that the canal boat had broken loose the engine was stopped; but it was too late.

Held by the Court—That if the propeller had any right at all to put her screw in motion while she was fast to the dock, she certainly had no right to do so without notifying vessels likely to be affected by it, so as to enable them to protect themselves against the current put in motion by the screw. That, as the propeller did not give any such notice in this case, she is liable for the damage.

Decree for libelant.

Mr. Frisbie for libelant; Mr. Murray for respondents.

UNITED STATES COMMISSIONERS' OFFICE.

Before Commissioner Shields.

A COUNTERFEITING CASE.

Morris Cornell was charged yesterday with passing a counterfeit $20 note on the Tradesman's National Bank, on the ticket agent of the New Jersey Central Railway, at the foot of Cortlandt-street. The prisoner was held in $500 to await the action of the Grand Jury.

THE ALLEGED LARCENY BY SAILORS.

The six men named John Egan, George C. McDowell, John Franks, George Hall, Peter Sowden and Elias Sowden, who were charged with stealing matria skins from the bark Tutti, were discharged. The Commissioner said that he based his action on the fact that evidence against the accused was of a very meagre nature, and that there were other circumstances connected with the case which were in their favor.

SUPREME COURT—CIRCUIT—PART II.—DEC. 23.

Before Judge Ingraham and a Jury.

FALSE REPRESENTATIONS—SUIT FOR THE AMOUNT OF A CHECK—VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT.

Williams vs. Ely.—This was an action to recover the amount of a check for $1,800, given upon a Western bank, in payment of a note of $3,312 50, made by John B. Hutchinson, late cashier of the National Bank of the Metropolis, at Washington, D. C. The plaintiff was indebted to the defendant the difference between the amount of this note and the check given by the defendant to secure his debt. The defence proved that the check was obtained by the false statements of the plaintiff as to the responsibility of the maker of the note, and that he was induced to give this check upon those misstatements.

The case was conducted for the plaintiff by Mr. Wm. Tracy, and by Joseph Field Ely, Esq., for the defendant. The able and eloquent address to the jury by Mr. Ely was a matter of no little comment by the Bar in full attendance at the Circuit. This young counselor was a pupil of Hon. Wm. M. Evarts, who happened to be present, and if we are any judge, he could be gratified that so able a young man has emanated from under his legal guidance and instruction.

WHEN EXPRESS COMPANIES ARE LIABLE—AN EPISODE OF THE REBELLION.

Joseph Merwin et al. vs. The American Express Company.—The plaintiffs in this suit, composing the firm of Merwin & Bray, dealers in guns and pistols on Broadway, in this City, brought this action against the American Express Company for the purpose of recovering the sum of $345 and interest for goods sold under the following circumstances: In the beginning of July, 1863, when the rebellion was at its culmination, a man signing himself H. Sam. Bright, and representing himself to be the Secretary of a Union Huntsville, Alabama, Home Guard and Loyal Leagues club, called to have them forward immediately to his address at Huntsville, a quantity of Colt's revolvers and Derringer pistols, with the necessary ammunition. The representations were that there were a large number of stray rebels and "Knights of the Golden Circle" in that vicinity, and peaceful Union men there felt it to be their duty to defend themselves and especially to defend their country to the last, and they wanted small arms for that purpose. The letter concluded by asking that they be forwarded, to be paid for on delivery. The plaintiffs accordingly boxed the goods, addressed "H. Sam. Bright, Huntsville, Ind., C. O. D."

The testimony showed that the goods were duly delivered at their destination, and that efforts were made to find the consignee and deliver them to him. After a brief delay the box was transferred from Huntsville, where the defendants had no station, to Columbia City, a station a few miles beyond. There, after some further delay, and the consignee not appearing, the box was opened in the presence of witnesses and found to contain only bricks and straw. It was apparent that the box had been broken open and the pistols removed.

The Judge charged the jury that the defendants, as common carriers, were liable if the loss or robbery took place before the box arrived at Huntsville. They were not liable except as mere bailees for hire if it occurred at Huntsville, but inasmuch as they had no business to send the box on to Columbia City, if the jury believed that the loss occurred after it left Huntsville, the Company must be held liable. The jury found a verdict for Plaintiffs for the full amount, with interest.

SUPERIOR COURT—TRIAL TERM—DEC. 23.

Before Judge Monell and a Jury.

FIRE INSURANCE.

William H. Sherman vs. Niagara Fire Insurance Company.—This was an action to recover on an insurance policy on a house and furniture destroyed by fire in the State of North Carolina. The defence set up was that the original owner had transferred title to the property, and also his interest in the policy without the consent of the defendant, in violation of one of the clauses of the policy. A written permission for transfer was subsequently given by the agent, but it was contended that that permission could not revive the already dead policy. A motion to nonsuit, made on this ground, was denied by the Court and the cause submitted to the jury who rendered a verdict in favor of plaintiff for the full amount claimed, $672 66.

Man and Parsons for plaintiff; Cotterill Brothers for defendant.

SUPERIOR COURT—SPECIAL TERM—DEC. 23.

Before Judge Freedman.

THE FURMAN WILL CASE.

Cornelius Westervelt, Executor of the Estate of Anna Maria Furman, vs. Rebecca S. Haviland.—This case, already four years in Court, and frequently reported in the TIMES, was again up on a motion to vacate an order appointing a receiver. Eleanor F. Westervelt was one of the legatees, and also a subscribing witness to the will, and in consequence of being such witness is incapacitated from inheriting under the will. The present contest, therefore, is between the remaining heirs over the share of Mrs. Westervelt. Mrs. Rebecca Haviland has also instituted a suit claiming that Mrs. Furman died intestate, and that she is the sole heiress. The suit a receiver was appointed, the order appointing whom is now sought to be vacated, and another appointed in his place.

The Court took the papers and reserved decision.

Before Justices Kelly and Dowling.

A SACRILEGIOUS THIEF.

Before this tribunal, yesterday, was arraigned John Hill, on a charge of stealing $441 in money from the subscription box in St. Patrick's Cathedral, in Mott-street. John Cochlan, sexton of the cathedral, testified, substantially, that he caught the accused in the cathedral on Friday yesterday morning, at the same time finding the subscription box broken open and the money concealed in his pocket. He was sentenced to the Penitentiary for six months.

SURROGATE'S COURT—DEC. 22.

Before Surrogate Tucker.

INTERESTING QUESTION OF LAW—CAN A CITIZEN OF THE UNITED STATES RENOUNCE HIS CITIZENSHIP.

Jane Massey vs. James M. Fay.—This was an application to revoke letters of administration. The respondent obtained administration, as a creditor, of the estate of Samuel Massey, deceased, but there was no written renunciation on the part of the next of kin, and no citation to them to show cause against the appointment of the respondent. The petitioner moves to vacate the letters granted to the respondent, and applies herself for examination as the sole surviving child of the intestate. The respondent sought to obviate the effect of a failure to cite the next of kin, by alleging that the petitioner at the time was not a citizen of the United States, in which event no notice to her would have been necessary. The facts were that in 1866 Samuel Massey, the father of the petitioner, emigrated to Brazil with his family, with the avowed purpose of becoming a permanent resident and subject of that Empire. Mr. Massey died soon after arriving in Brazil; but the residue of his family remained. After the lapse of three years, the petitioner, who had never been a subject of the Empire of Brazil, returned to the United States, and commenced this proceeding. Mr. Roger A. Pryor, on behalf of the petitioner, argued that without the consent of the Government of the United States declared by law, a citizen of the United States cannot dissolve his allegiance and renounce citizenship; that in the absence of such consent so declared, the common law doctrine of perpetual allegiance is the law of the land, and that, even if a citizen may renounce his allegiance, he does not cease to be a citizen until he actually becomes a citizen or subject of another country

Commissioner Wells' Report—The Burdens of Taxation.

The treatment which Mr. WELLS has met with in his various reports, from a portion of the Press, has been simply disgraceful. In the opinion of most economists and thinkers on both sides of the Atlantic, these reports have been models of research, conscientious labor and the application of scientific principles to practical affairs. In fact, they have almost constituted an era in the history of American financial science. No public documents since ALEXANDER HAMILTON'S writings on finance, have appeared in this country, so clear, able and powerful. The conclusions may be sometimes in advance of the present thought of the nation, and may conflict with the supposed interests of certain influential bodies of manufacturers; but that they are formed after the most careful research, the most extended comparison of facts, and under a thoroughly conscientious purpose, no candid man can doubt. To dismiss them as "trash," or "theories," or as opinions paid for by "foreign gold," is simply impertinent. They are crowded with immensely important facts and most vigorous reasonings. They are to form the basis for the thought-out system of taxation which we must adopt before financial health is regained.

No journal or public man in this country can afford to dismiss Mr. WELLS with a sneer. This journal, as our readers are aware, has always held, in harmony with the Commissioner, that even contraction would not bring back financial health unless the burdens of excessive taxation were removed from production. As it is now, the purchasing power of the whole community is lessened by the enormous drain for taxes. Production becomes so expensive under it, that even with a gold basis for the currency, we could not compete with foreign nations in our manufactures, and all classes would still be weighed down by high prices. Mr. WELLS devotes a very ingenious section of his report to a demonstration of the effect of these fiscal burdens on one important interest which usually feels itself somewhat exempted from taxation—the agricultural. In a series of interesting figures, he demonstrates the present losses of farmers in all the articles which they purchase. Thus, 100 bushels of wheat would bring the farmer, in 1855, 6,824 pounds of bar iron; now they will only give 4,154 pounds. If he wants axes, they would have yielded him then 16 1-9 dozen; in 1869, 11½ dozen. If he purposed furnishing his house with ingrain, two-ply Lowell carpeting, this amount of wheat will only give him 103 11-13 yards against 193½ yards then. If he buys blankets, he gets 26½ pairs for his grain, where he got 41½ pairs in 1859. In boots he obtains 3 1-7 dozen, when he used to get 6⅔ dozen. If he is buying stoves, he must take 14 1-5 for his 100 bushels, when he once received 24 1-6. Should he be laying up fish stores for the Winter, he is still more unfortunate, for he can only get 5 barrels of mackerel, against 13½ in 1859, and 1,800 pounds of codfish, against 3,625 pounds ten years ago. What is the more aggravating to the farmer, this immense increase of cost in the materials for which he exchanges his wheat is not compensated by any great gain to the revenues of the country, for in the matter of blankets, as the Commissioner says, with a certain spice of dry humor, "If he should endeavor to console himself with the reflection that the Treasury gains to the extent that he loses, and that through his sacrifices the period for the extinguishment of the national debt is shortened, he will find the receipts of the duties on blankets, under the tariff, to have been in 1867, $207,598, and in 1868, $25,-288!"

The farmer's wheat produced under these burdens of taxation, of course costs a great deal more than does a similar quantity in Europe, and yet it sells for the same price. Moreover, all his expenses of forwarding, exchanging and exporting are increased by the taxation and the unsettled currency. It is believed that the cost of transportation, storing and managing wheat or flour within the country, is ten per cent. greater than it would be under a normal system.

Every exporter, too, must charge an insurance on his risks of a change in the currency, which varies from one to four per cent. All these losses, and the added expense of production from taxation, are not borne by the European consumer, or even in part by him, but entirely by the farmer, as the price of wheat is governed by its cost of production in Eastern Europe, which is very low. The price throughout this country depends also on the price of the surplus exported, so that all the burdens of the production fall on the farmer alone.

One great consolation which has always been held out to the American farmer under taxation, has been that he was deriving a liberal home market from domestic manufactures. Mr. WELLS, however, rudely demolishes this comfort, for it appears that the whole product of agriculture reaches the immense sum of three thousand three hundred millions of dollars. On the other hand, the number of persons directly employed in two of the most important branches of manufacture—the woolen and cotton—are 215,900. The price of board for operatives is about $3 per week, so that the agricultural products consumed by the laborers in these branches would amount in value to $33,540,-000 per annum. If an equal amount be added for the pig and bar iron industry, and the total be doubled to cover the indirect consumption attributable to these industries, the result will be $134,160,000, or 4 1-10 per cent. of the whole annual agricultural product of the country. So that the consumption of four per cent. of their products at home is all the benefit the farmers derive from the enormous burdens laid upon them in taxation.

This is only one instance of the weight of taxation upon production, but its value consists in its being found in a class supposed to be comparatively exempt, and in one on whose welfare the prosperity of all other classes rests.

The New-York Post Office and its Architect.

One of the fortunate circumstances attending the commencement of our new Post Office was that the preliminaries had escaped from the crowd of plunderers who lie in wait for spoils to be gathered from such enterprises. The purchase of the land was finally accomplished in spite of City Hall attempts to make money out of the transaction, and the work was begun with a bona fide intention to complete it without delay and with entire freedom from corrupt influences. Those who have watched the operations of the architect, up to this time, have been surprised at the great activity displayed, and the great progress made during a short period.

But it seems that Mr. MULLETT is not to be permitted to continue his work in peace. It has been found impossible to influence him corruptly, or by intimidation, or in any other way, and, consequently, he becomes the subject of bitter hostility. Foiled in attempts to participate in the money voted by Congress, resort is had to obstruction. The proposed visit of the House Committee on Post Offices to New-York, to investigate charges against Mr. MULLETT, is a result of this course. The character of the charges indicates their frivolity and malice: for instance, it was alleged that more money had been expended than was authorized by Congress, while in reality a considerable sum still remains to the credit of the work.

Now there is no possible harm to be apprehended by Mr. MULLETT from any investigation, however searching. His character for zeal, ability and honor is well enough established, and will not suffer by any examination whatever. But there are others concerned besides himself whose interests and convenience must not be ignored. We want our Post Office built with all proper speed. There must be no delays arising from factious opposition by disappointed speculators, contractors or politicians. The lesson of the new Court House is one which New-York will not readily forget. Were the new Post Office dependent for its completion upon the tender mercies of such men as have mulcted the City of millions for the construction of the Court House, we should despair of its being ready for use within the lifetime of our youngest readers. As it is, however, in very different hands, the two years named for the whole work will probably not be exceeded. But that this prospect may be realized, there must be no improper interference. The Committee, perhaps, could hardly refuse investigation in the present instance, but when the motives which prompted the application for it are made apparent, and the architect justified, there should be no more such needless vexation. Let us have at least one public building of which we may say that no time was lost in its construction, and no private corruption tolerated during the process.

State Rights in Iowa.

The action of a recent Convention held at Muscatine, Iowa, was menacing, and its speeches were quite warlike. The difficulty in question may be described as follows: During the late rebellion certain counties in Iowa, under an enabling act of the Legislature, issued bonds in aid of the construction of railways. The constitutionality of this act, however, being questioned, a test case was proposed before the Supreme Court of Iowa, which decided the bonds to be valid. Thereupon many more bonds were issued; and when some of the counties defaulted payment of the interest, the holders sued in the United States Courts, and recovered judgments. Subsequently the Supreme Court of Iowa was changed in its composition, new members entering it, and the former decision on the bonds was reversed. Accordingly, the counties, under this latter decision, repudiated the bonds. But when the holders again sued for interest in the United States Courts, they again recovered judgment, and the Courts, on the refusal of certain County Supervisors to levy a tax to pay the accrued interest, ordered their arrest and imprisonment for contempt. Thereupon the citizens became indignant, claiming that when the Supreme Court of Iowa reversed its decision, the District Court of the United States should have followed in the same direction. Hence the Muscatine Convention, with its fiery speeches, and its smoky if not fiery resolutions.

It is a "very pretty quarrel as it stands." The amount involved is about ten millions, which is no trifle, and in addition comes the question of State rights. It is unquestionable that the Convention has raised some good points of law, and that the case is one for sharp litigation. However, the better opinion appears to be that the second decision of the State Court would have the effect, if it annulled the bonds, to impair the obligation of contracts—a power given to no Court and no Legislature. And, in any event, there seems to be no ground for "denouncing" the District Court for its action in the premises, or for threatening forcible resistance. It is a dry legal question, and not one for violent appeals.

Our Public Schools.

It is a common subject of complaint that, after all we do in providing free schools, so large a percentage of children avoid them, especially among those classes who more than all others need to profit by their instruction. In saying this, we do not refer so much to the single City of New-York as to all our cities, and to the country at large. The question comes up, do we give the children all that they or their parents can properly demand; and, again, do we surround the school with such attractions as will induce parents to send their children thither at all hazards, and induce the children at all hazards to go? To our mind, a school system designed for all classes in a great city is not perfect until it suggests to children, not to play the truant from school, but, if need be, to play the truant from home and from the streets, in order to attend school.

We admit that schools have changed since the old, well-remembered times, when bare walls, ill-aired and cramped schoolrooms, torturing forms and seats, a droning teacher and drowsy tasks, and ridiculous regulations, rendered anything but ridiculous to pupils by the rod, were the distinguishing features of schoolboy life. But even to this day it is a marvel how much is done to drive, and how little to draw children,—what adroit devices are used for squeezing or frightening work out of little reprobates, and how few sympathetic efforts are made to awaken their curiosity and interest. We do not pretend, of course, that every public school can be made a "kindergarten," or that the rough young "cubs" sometimes offered for nurture can be "licked" into shape by the mere application of the tongue,—so doing away with the ferule. But what we mean is that, in many a school, the repulsive in discipline and instruction has so much the better of the attractive that the chief anxiety of pupils is to escape from the schoolroom. For ourselves, we never have been able to see what there was in fine engravings so heinous as to procure their banishment from so many well-ordered schoolrooms, or in paintings that they should be prohibited from covering the blank walls whose monotony is only broken by the stealthily-cast wad of paper or the tracks of the irreverent fly. Books and portraits within, ivy or other trailers without, flowers at the lintels and windows,—what harm is there in these and all the myriad decorations which us children of a larger growth employ to adorn our homes, and often even our counting rooms and offices? In the City schoolhouses are usually fine buildings, but in the country they are often shabby makeshifts. Add object teachings, the free use of illustrations and the modern appliances for awakening interest, and cease to count the day's progress simply by the number of words one has extorted from "recitations," and teaching would be easier and better both for pedagogue and pupil.

On the other hand, there are certain ways in which parents could be appealed to more successfully. One of these is to stop the mania for changing schoolbooks. We know that this is not always the fault of teachers, but often of overruling "committees," who have been "seen" by schoolbook publishers. The business of publishing schoolbooks is now a very great and lucrative one, and it employs constantly, from publishers to printers and pressmen, thousands of people. The constant tendency is, of course, to flood the market with something new; and one would almost imagine that tastes were as fickle and insatiable in educational literature as in poetry or newspapers. The rivalry of the trade feeds this unhappy flame. Great pressure is exerted on superintendents, teachers, selectmen, school committees and others, to introduce new text books. Where are those well-thumbed, dogs-eared volumes on which the present generation of writers, workers and thinkers were nourished? They are utterly gone; and if any of us should inquire for the grammars and arithmetics we once knew, we should be greeted at the book stall by a wondering stare. Yet simply in the rudiments of grammar and arithmetic no such revolutionary changes have been effected as to make us of the elder generation incapable of talking or writing or multiplying correctly.

But now, of the making of schoolbooks there is no end; and we protest that parents are half right in their impatience at the continual calls for new books. Tom's books will not do for Jack, nor Jack's for Mary, nor Mary's for Jane. Two years overturn a dynasty in school-child's literature, and we are constantly finding that old books have passed away and all books become new. Besides, each child must have a whole library of books, in each of which he progresses a little. Nowadays there are few single, independent, comprehensive schoolbooks—they generally form parts of "series." Instead of a grammar, we have a series of grammars, parsers, definers, analysers, and so on; instead of a reading book, we have first, second and third primary readers; fourth, fifth and sixth intermediate readers; seventh, eighth and ninth common school readers; tenth, eleventh and twelfth high school readers. And wherever new books cannot, even at this rate, be forced fast enough into circulation, artful publishers sometimes (if unsuccessful in personal appeals of another sort) give, with great charity, a hundred or a thousand books to a school district. The next year, of course, the same quantity has to be taken, and are roundly charged for.

These are a few of the things to be thought of in connection with the popularity of public schools; and we doubt not that many other points could be suggested by the reader from his own experience.

Are the Alabama Claims Likely to be Settled?

We cannot arrive at any reasonable answer to this question without properly comprehending the tone of public opinion in England. Our own position is clear enough. We know perfectly well what kind of settlement would content us as a people. But as there is another party to the dispute, it is necessary to find out in what temper the subject is approached on that side. And we cannot conceal from ourselves the fact, that at this moment the English people are as little disposed as ever they were to make that full reparation which alone can wipe out the recollection of the wrong done to us during the rebellion.

We do not attach too much importance to the views set forth by the English Press. But at the same time we cannot deny that if all the public journals in the country unite in one expression of opinion, there is a fair presumption that they faithfully reflect the sentiment of the people. If we tried to put this sentiment into a few words, we should say that it amounted to this—"We English have offered to pay all the money claims on account of the Alabama, but the apology which is demanded from us we cannot give." When it is answered, "Then you must take the consequences," the rejoinder comes back, "We must make the best of a very bad matter, and stand ready to fight if need be." Of course all this is shortsighted and foolish. But nations have fits of sullenness and ill-temper like individuals, and England appears to be in one of them. She probably thinks that while it would be a very simple matter to pay the amount demanded by the owners of the vessels burned by the Alabama, it is not so easy to bear the reproaches which Secretaries of State cast upon her from time to time.

This, at least, is the tone of all the latest English papers. The Pall Mall Gazette declares that "everything that can be said" on the subject "has been said—on both sides, and a great many times over." Consequently it will think Secretary FISH'S long dispatch worse than superfluous. The Spectator considers England's concession of belligerent rights to the South an act of friendship toward the North—because it prevented hundreds of privateers being fitted out for Southern use. The Saturday Review snarls at the President's Message, and says that the "reports which attributed to the President unfriendly feelings to England appear to have been perfectly correct." We might quote from every journal, and the general tone would be found exactly the same.

Unless, then, the English Government is more plastic than the English people, it is still doubtful when this long-standing dispute will be disposed of. Lord CLARENDON declined to follow Secretary FISH into the details of the controversy. Practically, he says with the newspapers, "There has been enough talk on both sides." The English nature is not deficient in obstinacy, and that quality is more perceptible than any other at this particular moment. Secretary FISH'S dispatch will not tend to soften this feeling. If we have come to a deadlock on the subject, we, at least, can afford to stand by and await the issue. England is not quite so safe in taking that course.

The confirmation by the Senate of LEWIS B. WOODRUFF as United States Circuit Judge for this district, is an honorable tribute to his ability as a lawyer and his character as a man. Members of the profession may have had other preferences while the claims of candidates were yet undetermined by the President. But, the nomination made, there could be but one feeling in regard to the qualifications of Judge WOODRUFF and his acceptability to the Bar and the public. As a Judge of the Common Pleas in former years, and now as a member of the Court of Appeals, he has earned universal confidence and respect. He will fill with usefulness and distinction the part assigned him in the reorganized judiciary.

The London Times telegraphed the greater part of the President's Message for its exclusive use. All the other papers were lost in astonishment, and awe at this magnificent example of enterprise. It was stupendous. All London fell down and worshiped the Times. Was not this chorus of admiration really a striking proof of the absence of enterprise in the management of English papers? The Times, with a yearly profit of not less than £100,000, actually goes to a trifling outlay for a four-column Message by cable—and the English people cry out as if a miracle had been performed, or a wondrous portent had appeared in the heavens. We do feats of that kind every day in the year, and think nothing of them. Only yesterday we had about a page and a half of telegraphic news, and a leading article upon the Alabama correspondence, which was still coming over the wires at one in the morning. The English journals are well written, but they do not know what enterprise in getting news means. The Times has fallen behind the age, and the Telegraph is afraid to spend money. Another JOHN WALTER (the First) is wanted in London. He understood his business. His successors have been mere money grabbers and anglers after a peerage.

The factory girls in several parts of New-England are dissatisfied with the treatment they are receiving from their employers. In Dover, N. H., about 600 have gone out on strike, and a meeting of female operatives in Lowell has sent messages of sympathy and support. According to the complaint of the chief speaker, (Miss COLLINS,) in old times the girls were treated like human beings, "but lately the cotton kings had become more avaricious, and in their wild rush for wealth had forgotten all honor, and forsaken every feeling of humanity." She went on to say that the factory girls were worse off than the black women of the South. She also remarked that while Mrs. SURRATT was executed, HORACE GREELEY came forward to bail JEFFERSON DAVIS—"such a circumstance was a strong argument for woman suffrage." The Lowell girls evidently have strong views of their own, but we trust they exaggerate their wrongs.

Mr. ANDREW HALLIDAY has worked up the subject of "Marriage" into a comedy. If he has only made the institution of marriage ridiculous enough, his work ought to be warmly appreciated in some quarters when it is brought out here. Miss DICKINSON delivered a lecture in this City on Tuesday night. In the course of it she referred to Mrs. MCFARLAND thus: "The community dares to blaspheme truth and Godby defending with (!) a murder on the ground that this woman, who belongs only to her Maker, is the property of this man who claimed her as his wife." In a "beautiful" article, a respectable morning journal sounded Miss DICKINSON'S praises for this lecture. The beautiful article was a little hysterical and confused, as such sublime productions are apt to be. However, we are told plainly enough that Miss DICKINSON has a "terrible power of truth-telling," that "her intuitions are fine," and that her lecture was calculated "to make men tenderer and women thoughtfuller." As for the praise bestowed on the lady's "noble and beautiful presence," it is too gushing and ecstatic to be quoted in a simple newspaper. Mr. HALLIDAY'S comedy will do very well.

With a pardonable tendency to speculate ahead,—seeing we are under a sort of necessity to go always ahead,—we have already taken the island of Hispaniola, almost—being sure of at least three-fifths of it, or something about eighteen thousand square miles of what nearly approaches the description of a terrestrial paradise. Having got ALASKA, and taken up its ices, "as a little thing," we have an appetite for more, like Oliver Twist, and will yet, no doubt, have our own Archipelago, as every great continent ought. Samana is a good purchase—"a fat take," for a hundred reasons, and San Domingo and Hayti may yet help us to settle the "negro question." The latter would make a sort of Liberia at our front door—not a very pleasant consideration, perhaps. But it seems to be our fate to settle that grand question of the ethnologists as well as most other questions of human right and liberty. For which reason we raise no objection against that entire island of Hispaniola.

If the stern Pilgrim Fathers could come back and see some of their anniversaries, they would be surprised and perhaps scandalized to find them so full of jokes and so stuffed with epigrams and puns. Even the New-Englanders themselves grow jocose on the subject. Mr. BEECHER, for instance, on the recent occasion said some facetious things about the sufferings undergone at the Delmonico banquet in sympathy with the forefathers of the Mayflower. The fun of it was wonderfully sly and had some of the "miching malhecho" which generally means mischief. Then there was Mayor HALL; his good things were pyrotechnic—he rioted in "points" and made everybody laugh—especially when he said Manhattan Island was the true Plymouth Rock, and the "theatre" of New-York would shortly be under a single stage manager. Mr. BARRET brought out his pun also on behalf of St. Patrick—in some respects a greater one than the others. It was altogether a hilarious affair, showing the tendency of men and things to turn Plymouth Rock into the "Blarney stone of New-England."

Can nothing be done to stop the shameless exhibitions of vice which now take place at frequent intervals in one or two theatres and music halls? Or are we content to take a code of morals straight from the hands of the outcasts of society? On Wednesday night a bal masqué took place at the French Theatre. It was the resort of the scum of the earth. Infamous creatures endeavored to surpass each other in outraging every sentiment of decency. And who were the spectators? Men of position and influence—citizens calling themselves respectable, with wives and daughters at home whom they do their utmost to bring into disgrace. In one box was a party of civic officials, well known in the town—Aldermen and others, representatives of our Democratic City Government. Their conduct was viler than that of the degraded wretches whose obscene revels had attracted them to the place. They seized upon one woman and flung her from the box. Her thigh was broken in the fall. The Police were appealed to, but declared that they dared not meddle with the occupants of the box, for they were all members of the City Government. We might publish the names of these men, but if they were not shameless reprobates they would never have been in that box at all. Some of the papers which deal exclusively in scandals had better send a reporter to the next orgie of this kind, and give the names of all the men who are present. Exposure is the only punishment some people fear, especially Aldermen and Deputy Sheriffs.

BROADHEAD, says an English paper, is on his way to America. If anybody asks who is BROADHEAD, he had better try to recall the worst of all the outrages committed in Sheffield, England, by order of the trades' unions. BROADHEAD was the man who was at the bottom of the worst of them—see report of a Parliamentary Committee on the subject for proofs. CHARLES READE has drawn his portrait in Put Yourself in His Place. BROADHEAD declares he is an injured man. We get all the injured men, as a matter of course; but we could have done without this particular one. If the interviewers get at him, it is to be hoped they will ask him a few awkward questions, which he has hitherto declined to answer, concerning the fate which befell several non-union workmen in Sheffield.

A member of the California Assembly has entered upon the astonishing task of reforming the Democracy of San Francisco! That amiable section of the city politicians have long reckoned beating and otherwise maltreating Chinamen among their choicest recreations. A bill is introduced to end this, if possible. Does it propose to punish outrage and vindicate the law, do our readers suppose? Not at all. The plan is to appoint a new Police Commission to "prevent Chinese slavery and to protect Mongolians." There are to be three Commissioners—$2,500 a year each, and 350 policemen, $150 a month each. The total cost will be $637,500 for salaries, or say a million altogether, which is a remarkably cheap figure at which to purchase the Democracy. But this is not all. The Chinese are to foot the bills, and something over. Each of the yellow men is to pay $10 a month, and each woman $6 a month, for protection by their present oppressors. As there are enough male and female Chinese adults to produce $7,300,000 a year—children being kindly exempted—there follows $6,488,000 profit on the transaction. This is excellent. It is a combination of gains and goodness which reflects the utmost credit upon its originator. Really, the New-York prototypes of these "Frisco" boys must look to their laurels. Our City lights thought they were reasonably astute, but here is a new placer that may make them pale with envy. Robbery and swindling were easy enough, but there on the Pacific side is a way found out of "looting" legally and making the virtues pay.

American Institute—Polytechnic Branch.

A large gathering of ladies and gentlemen, principally the latter, filled the wretchedly-ventilated Room No. 24 of the Cooper Institute last evening. Professor S. D. TILLMAN was in the chair. A discussion was held on the merits of different indicators designed to indicate the powers of the steam engine. Dr. PASTEUR'S transparent mirror was explained by its inventor. Dr. HALL'S bathometer for deep-sea soundings was discussed at considerable length. The result of the talk seemed to be the conviction that it was a capital invention, only that it would not rise to the surface again after it went to the bottom. About half of the session was devoted to discussing whether the instrument would rise or fall in the water, which would seem to show that a few lectures on specific gravity would not come amiss.

Dr. BRADLEY then read an elaborate essay on the "Aurora Borealis," claiming that it was produced by electrical action, and sustaining the theory of Professor VANDERWEYDE. Mr. BOYLE differed from Mr. BRADLEY, and Dr. EDWARDS agreed with him. The meeting then adjourned, with the announcement that the steam engine was the subject at the next session.

WASHINGTON.

The Nomination of Judge Hoar—The Samana Station—Inland Transportation in Bond—The New-York Post Office—Mexican Claims.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—It is stated to-night that the President has intimated that in the case of Attorney-General HOAR he will await that gentleman's return to this city, and then leave it for him to determine whether he will prefer to have his nomination withdrawn, or let it come to a final vote. In the latter case there is no doubt whatever of his rejection, and it is believed, therefore, that he will consent to the withdrawal of his name.

OUR NEW NAVAL STATION.

The action of the Senate yesterday has caused a great deal of comment, and a diverse expression of opinion. Outside of official circles the action of the Senate is quite generally approved. Our foothold in St. Domingo will shortly assume additional proportions. It will be remembered that Mr. SEWARD'S great desire for that acquisition was to establish there a naval station, which we much need in the West Indies. The Nantasket is now cruising in those waters, and our force will shortly be increased by the addition of two more vessels. It is also probable that this squadron will be made a separate command, and rumor points to Admiral PORTER as the possible future commander of this station and the vessels attached thereto.

THE CAPITAL IN THE HOLIDAYS.

During holiday week the President will not receive general visitors, and will only receive official visitors by card. He desires to close up considerable business that is now behind, in consequence of the pressure of public matters for the last thirty days. A very large majority of the members of both Houses have left for their homes. Such Senators as reside here will remain here, mostly. But few members of the Lower House will spend the holidays here. The only Committees which will be in session during the recess are the Appropriations Committee of the House, and the Finance Committee of the Senate.

BONDED TRANSPORTATION LINES.

The following railroad and transportation companies have been bonded, and are now transporting goods in bond from any seaport on their routes to various inland Custom Houses, where the duties are paid. The Blue Line is running bonded cars from Boston to Worcester, Springfield, Albany and Buffalo, via New-York Central and eastern connections; to Suspension Bridge, Detroit and Chicago, via the Great Western and Michigan Central; to Cairo, via the Illinois Central; to St. Louis, via the Alton Railroad; to Quincy and Burlington, via Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad. The Chicago and Northwestern Railway Company run bonded cars from Chicago to Freeport, Madison and Green Bay; bonded steamers and cars from Green Bay to Marquette by the Shore Line Railroad; from Chicago to Milwaukee, and its trunk line from Chicago to Omaha. The Union Pacific and California Central are bonded from Omaha to San Francisco. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad is bonded to Columbus and Parkersburg. The New-York and Erie Railroads to Buffalo, Dunkirk, Cleveland and Cincinnati. The Northern Central from Baltimore to Harrisburg, and its connection with the New-York Central. The Hudson River and Harlem Roads and their Northern connections to Canada are bonded, as are the Connecticut River Railroads and connections, including the Vermont Central, Rutland, and Ogdensburg Roads. The Union Railroad Transportation Company, incorporated by the State of Pennsylvania, has made application at the Treasury Department to have its cars bonded from New-York to Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Pittsburg, Chicago, and other points West, via the Camden and Amboy, Allentown, Pennsylvania Central, Pan-Handle, Fort Wayne, and connecting roads. The application is understood to be defective. As soon as it is properly amended, the required bonds will be executed. Under existing laws and regulations, imported goods are inspected and appraised at the landing place, and the duties collected at the final destination. Mr. JUDD'S bill proposes to have the whole business transacted at the place last named.

THE NEW-YORK POST OFFICE.

The House Post Office Committee to-day continued the examination of Mr. MULLETT, the architect, and they obtained considerable information of interest to the members regarding the plans, specifications and other details of the New-York Post Office. It has now transpired that this investigation has no better foundation than rumor, and that no written charges have been filed with the Committee. The Secretary of the Treasury and the Postmaster-General are responsible for initiating this work, and nothing has yet occurred to indicate that the work is not being done to their entire satisfaction. A resolution calling upon them for information would, therefore, have been only courteous to them. A majority of the Committee are undoubtedly disposed to act fairly and justly, but they have allowed an interested party to initiate a proceeding which has no basis to rest upon. The following are the bids for the cast iron columns of the Post Office building, about which there has been some inquiry: J. B. & W. W. Cornell, $3,638 40; William Taylor & Son, $7,040; George R. Jackson, $4,953 88; Dawson & Co., $8,272 20; Ætna Iron Works, $5,499 24; Iron City Foundry, $11,616; McKinley & Smack, $9,856; James L. Jackson & Bro., $8,430; Janes, Kirtland & Co., $7,072; Watson & Delassierrek, $7,300; Architectural Iron Works, $7,257 60; H. C. Oram & Co., $5,699 36; Hubbard & Whittaker, $7,700; Paulding, Kemble & Co., $6,056.

NEW-YORK WAR CLAIMS.

General J. B. STONEHOUSE, of Albany, agent of the State of New-York, has been here for some days arranging for the final settlement of the war claims of the State against the Government. Considerable progress has been made, several important points having been adjusted, and the claims are now in a fair way toward final settlement.

THE MEXICAN CLAIMS.

The joint American-Mexican Commission for the settlement of the outstanding claims between the two countries, has not yet succeeded in the matter of an umpire. Mr. THORNTON was agreed on by the Commission, and he has been formally asked to act in that capacity. He at first declined positively, but has agreed to reconsider the matter. The approval of the Mexican authorities has of course to be obtained, and the Mexican Commissioner has notified his Government, but no reply has yet been received. There are about six hundred claimants for payment of interest on Mexican bonds, but none of the claims have been filed yet. The general opinion appears to be that these claims will be admitted under the treaty.

PERSONAL.

Secretary BOUTWELL left here this evening for his home in Groton, Mass., where he will spend the holidays.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

THE WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE.

The

amount of $69,000. Looking over the vouchers, it appears the full amount received by General SCHENCK, Chairman of the Committee, was $179, for traveling two or three times to New-York, Philadelphia and Washington in the months of April and May, and for all his expenses in those cities. The unfounded charge against him was that he had taken $10,000 of the public money and gone to Europe.

NAVY—SAMANA.

The United States steamers Yantic and Albany, now at New-York, will be refitted and ordered to rejoin the North Atlantic Squadron, under command of Admiral POOR. The Powhatan, which recently returned to Philadelphia, will be put out of commission; orders have already been given to pay off and discharge the crew. The Seminole is to be ordered to San Domingo, where the United States steamer Nantasket is already on duty. Coal for the use of the North Atlantic Squadron has been sent by the Navy Department to Samana, now in possession of our Government. Admiral POOR will probably soon make a visit to Hayti in his flagship, for the purpose of looking after United States interests in that quarter. The harbor of Port Royal, S. C., has been recommended as a naval rendezvous for the vessels of the North Atlantic Squadron, and will probably be used for that purpose. Admiral POOR, in his flagship Severn, accompanied by the monitor Dictator, has left Savannah for Key West.

GENERAL SICKLES' NOMINATION.

The nomination of General SICKLES as Minister to Spain has not yet been reported from the Committee on Foreign Relations.

The receipts of customs at the below mentioned ports for the week ending Dec. 18 were as follows:

Boston	$316,806
New-York	1,609,708
Philadelphia	125,237
Baltimore (Dec. 4 to 18)	322,819
New-Orleans (Dec. 4 to 11)	148,051

THE PORK PACKERS' TAX.

The following order was issued to-day upon the representations of Hon. N. B. JUDD, of Illinois, and is to be extended to all other collection districts of the country:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF INTERNAL REVENUE,
WASHINGTON, Dec. 23, 1869.

To Edmund Jussen, United States Collector, Chicago:

Suspend the collection of tax on pork packers, assessed under section four, act of March 31, 1869, until otherwise ordered.

(Signed) C. DELANO, Commissioner.

MEXICAN COMMISSION TESTIMONY.

The United States and Mexican Joint Commission has promulgated the following preamble and order: "The Commissioners being of opinion that they have no power to regulate the taking of testimony or the production of the same before them, either in support of, or in answer to any claim, but that the whole matter, by the treaty, has been reserved to the discretion of the high contracting parties, it is ordered that the rules heretofore promulgated by this Commission, regulating the taking of depositions and authentication of papers and documents, be rescinded, and that the Secretaries communicate this act to the Secretary of State of the United States and to the Minister of Mexico, resident at Washington, and further cause the same to be published in a convenient number of newspapers of both countries."

FRANKED AND FREE MAIL MATTER.

The Post Office Department is now sending to all Postmasters in the United States the following circular on the subject of free mail matter:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE THIRD ASSISTANT POSTMASTER-GENERAL,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 17, 1869.

To POSTMASTERS: The Postmaster-General has this day made the following order:

"Ordered, That all Postmasters in the United States be instructed to take an accurate monthly account of all franked or free matter deposited at their respective offices for the months for a period of six months commencing Jan. 1 and ending June 30, 1870, and to make special reports thereof to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General at the close of each month, embracing the following particulars, viz.:

First—The number of franked or free letters, and the amount of postage that would be chargeable thereon at the established rate of postage.

Second—The weight of franked or free matter other than letters, and the amount of postage that would be chargeable thereon at the current rates of postage.

Postmasters will carefully conform to the foregoing instructions, using the inclosed form, which must be promptly forwarded to the office at the close of each month.

Should this circular fail to be received at any Post Office in time to commence taking an account of free matter on the 1st of January, 1870, let the return for that month include such portion of the month as may remain when the circular is received.

By order of the Postmaster-General.

(Signed) W. H. H. TERRELL,
Third Assistant Postmaster-General.

THE BOMBAY HOOK TRAGEDY.

Suicide of Dickey, the Convicted Murderer.

JOHN DICKEY, who was on Wednesday evening found guilty of the murder of his wife, as already reported in these columns, committed suicide at a late hour on the same evening. It appears that after hearing the verdict of the jury he was conducted to his cell by the Sheriff. At 10:30 o'clock the cell was again visited by the same officer when DICKEY was found hanging by the neck from the grating of his window quite dead. He had tied a large cotton pocket handkerchief around his throat, and by means of a stool had raised himself to an upper bar of the window, and after tying one end of the handkerchief had kicked the stool from under him. An inquest was held yesterday and a verdict of self-destruction rendered.

Billiards.

An event of more than ordinary interest to the lovers of legitimate sport was the opening last night of a billiard room on Broadway, near Thirty-second-street. The opening of a billiard room is almost an every day occurrence, but the affair last night derived additional importance from the fact that the proprietor is the popular minstrel, NEIL BRYANT, who, when the game was younger, and not played by half the number of people that it is to-day, was one of the finest amateur billiardists the Metropolis could muster. All the leading professionals of the City, as well as GEORGE STONE, of Norwich, and RALPH BENJAMIN, of Port Chester, assisted at the "house warming." The room has been furnished with seven Phalon & Collender tables, and is in all respects admirably appointed. All night long the room was thronged, mainly by personal friends of the proprietor, who, in thus adopting billiards as a profession, will not altogether abandon minstrelsy. The vast army of visitors, embracing men distinguished in almost every pursuit, was from time to time entertained with feats of skill between Messrs. MICHAEL PHELAN, STONE, BENJAMIN, CAHILL, DALEY and other notabilities. Altogether, the "opening" was a grand affair. That it attested in a substantial manner the great popularity of NEIL BRYANT will doubtless be acknowledged in view of the fact that experts estimated the receipts at $500.

The Masked Ball Orgies at the French Theatre.

The scenes which were witnessed at the fancy dress masked ball, given at the French Theatre on Wednesday evening, were quite unparalleled in coarse indecency and ruffianism by any similar public entertainment ever held in this City. The lewdness which was displayed was far too outrageous and repulsive for description in the columns of any decent newspaper. But by far the worst feature of the riotous occasion was the brutal treatment bestowed on the frail and scantily-dressed females in attendance, in which a large posse of Deputy Sheriffs took a prominent part. These officials occupied proscenium boxes, and behaved themselves in the most hardened, not to say demoniac, manner. One little incident will show the sort of amusement which they indulged in—they deliberately hurled one of the female dancers from a proscenium box to the floor beneath, a distance of several feet. The poor and unprotected sufferer was removed with a broken thigh. All through these scandalous transactions the policemen who were present seemed powerless in the face of the brutal deputies, apparently not caring to expel them for fear of the official consequences to themselves which might follow. The ball terminated at a late hour amid the most turbulent excitement.

The New Catholic Bishop of Chicago.

From the Chicago Republican, Dec. 23.

Since the Bishop of Chicago, Right Rev. JAMES DUGGAN, has become, it is said, insane, the Metropolitan Bishop of the province, Archbishop KENDRICK, of St. Louis, has been endeavoring to select a proper person to succeed him. Advices from Rome are now to the effect that a prominent priest from Baltimore has just been appointed coadjutor Bishop of Chicago, with the title of Bishop of Pergamus, in partibus in fidelium. Rev. THOMAS FOLEY is the appointee, and is said to be a clergyman of talent and a gentleman of great culture and refinement. The diocese, indeed, requires a clergyman not only of large administrative faculties, but of great mental resources, as it is an unusually extensive and important one, and the work to be done in it immense. Besides, the affairs of the diocese are understood to be in much disorder, consequent upon past mismanagement, especially as respects its finances, and which mismanagement is supposed to be attributable, in a great degree, to the unfortunate mental alienation of the Bishop.

AMUSEMENTS.

Theatrical.

LITTLE EM'LY AT NIBLO'S.

An adaptation by ANDREW HALLIDAY of DICKENS' David Copperfield was presented, on Monday evening, at Niblo's Garden, and has since drawn excellent houses. "Little Em'ly" is a piece of the jerky and fragmentary sort, which is almost inevitable when the attempt is made to dramatize a long novel and to get in a great many characters. Such as it is, however, the play proved an immense success in London and bids fair to become popular here. Dramas founded on well-known stories are apt to please, if only because they revive agreeable memories, and those constructed on the tales of DICKENS are especially likely to do because of the sharply-defined individuality of his personages and the blending of humor and pathos which is never absent from his works, and is so well suited to dramatic effect. "Little Em'ly" is one of the best DICKENS plays we have seen, for one reason among others that it gives a great deal of DICKENS and very little of the adaptater. There is hardly a colorless figure introduced, the scenes are bustling and adroitly put together, and the climaxes are natural and effective. Miss IONE BURKE, who made her first appearance since returning from Europe, is gentle, pathetic and attractive as Little Em'ly, and, considering that her situations are the most conventional in the piece, probably does all with the part that any ability short of genius could be expected to accomplish. Mr. BONIFACE charms his audience as Micawber, and acts with much care. He, however, lacks both humor and nicety of appreciation to exhaust the opportunities for effect afforded by that singular conception. Mr. SHEWELL as Peggotty, and Mr. BANGS as Ham, are both very salt and very good. If they could manage to be a trifle more unlike, and so enhance the contrast between their characters, it would be an improvement. Mr. VINCENT, as Uriah Heep, over-acts, but takes consummate pains, and deserves ample credit therefor. The Steerforth of Mr. MAEDER and the David of Mr. AIKEN are fair, the Agnes of Miss CHALLIS is pretty, the Rosa of Miss NEWTON is impressive, and the representatives of the remaining parts are acceptable.

The management are entitled to much credit for the liberality and sedulous care exhibited in placing "Little Em'ly" on the stage. There are marks of taste as well as of expenditure in the mise-en-scene that fully justify the hearty applause with which the drama has been received.

Organ Exhibition.

The new organ at St. George's Church, Stuyvesant-square, which has been lately finished by JARDINE & SON, is to be formally opened on the evening of the 30th inst. by several leading organists. The name of Mr. G. W. MORGAN appears on the programme, and with it is associated that of Mr. WILLIAMS, organist of the church, and of Mr. E. G. JARDINE, one of the builders of the organ. Miss KELLOGG will sing three selections, including HANDEL'S "Let the Bright Seraphim," with tuba mirabilis accompaniment.

Christmas Reading.

In the way of fresh Christmas reading, nothing can be better than BRENTANO'S budget from London, by the mails yesterday. He has a very excellent little work entitled The Book of Drawing-Room Plays and Evening Amusements, full of instructions for private theatricals, acting charades, &c. The newest numbers of the Illustrated London News, the Graphic, the Academy, Punch, and Nature are also upon his counters. TENNYSON'S new poem, the "Holy Grail," will be found among the beautiful gift books which tempt the purchaser of Christmas presents.

A Remarkable Case of Circumstantial Evidence.

From the St. Joseph (Mo.) Herald, Dec. 19.

The Circuit Court of Nodaway County has been in session during the past week, Judge I. C. PARKER presiding. Most of the time was occupied in the trial of SOLOMON MCALPINE for the murder of JOHN CALLICOTT, developing a most singular case of circumstantial evidence. In August, 1866, these two young men left Hollyville, Iowa, to come to St. Joseph to buy apples, expecting to load their wagon here and return to Iowa to sell their fruit. Not long after—some few days, we believe—MCALPINE returned to Hollyville, told some plausible story about his partner having made other arrangements and gone on to St. Joseph, and for some time no further notice was taken of the matter. The continued absence of CALLICOTT, and the fact that nothing was heard from him, finally induced the arrest of MCALPINE; but on his examination nothing was elicited criminating him, and he was discharged. A long search for CALLICOTT proved unavailing, and for eighteen months a profound mystery enveloped the case.

In March, 1868, a party of railroad engineers, surveying the route of the Missouri Valley Railroad, some six miles northeast of Maryville, found the skeleton of a man. An investigation aroused the suspicion that it was the remains of CALLICOTT. The authorities in Iowa were written to, and witnesses were brought down. The mother of CALLICOTT recognized a bony protruberance on the chin of the skeleton; also, the absence of a tooth drawn on the day he started on his fatal trip, and his mother preserved the tooth. It fitted the jaw of the skeleton, and a dentist testified it had been drawn from the orifice. Pieces of a blue coat and several peculiar buttons were found near the skeleton. These were recognized as resembling parts of CALLICOTT'S dress when he left home. There were three bullet holes in the skull.

The identification was so complete that MCALPINE was rearrested; and after several continuances the case came to trial last Monday, and resulted in the conviction of the prisoner. The Judge instructed the jury that any facts or want of proof mitigating the crime from murder in the first degree need not restrain their rendering a verdict of murder in the second degree, or manslaughter. The jury, after due deliberation, brought in a verdict of murder in the second degree. We learn that neither the prisoner nor his friends or attorneys manifest any dissatisfaction with the verdict, and the case will not be appealed.

A Young Woman Shoots Her Betrayer Dead.

From the Cincinnati Commercial.

IRONTON, Dec. 21.—About 6:30 this evening a young man named PRES. BARKER, charged with the seduction of ELIZABETH MCQUIGG, was shot and killed by her. Immediately after the shooting she gave herself up to Esquire MATHEWS. Her brother, JOHN MCQUIGG, was also arrested, charged with the same crime. Both were committed to jail. An inquest is now being held over BARKER'S body.

The girl's story is that she has waited for him to make her the only reparation in his power, which he has refused doing. To-day, hearing it rumored that he was going to be married, she determined to compel him to do her justice. Her brother and herself met him; she asked him what he intended doing; he replied "Nothing." She then told him he must go with her and marry her at once. On his refusal to do so, she fired two shots, one taking effect in his breast. He lived long enough to say to his father that it was the brother JOHN who shot him. The girl persists that it was she, and that she alone ought to suffer. Public feeling is divided as to the justice of the killing, and nothing can be said until all the facts are brought out in the trial.

A Cool Operator in New-Hampshire.

From the Nashua (N. H.) Telegraph, Dec. 21.

Last Saturday evening, after the physicians in attendance on Mr. A. S. BROWN, who was severely hurt on the railroad, had left for the night, a man of respectable appearance appeared at the door of the house and inquired for Mr. BROWN, introducing himself as Dr. HADLEY, of Boston. He told Mrs. BROWN that he had come from Ogdensburg, N. Y., that day, and that Dr. MOORE had requested him to come to the house and stop during the night, and be ready to assist in the amputation in the morning. The story was plausible, and he stopped. Late in the evening he requested a cup of tea, which was made for him, but he declined lunch, until Mrs. BROWN, happening to step into the dining room, found him on a voyage of discovery about the room, when he excused himself by saying he was looking for pie. Soon after he went to bed, but so great was his fatigue that he forgot to take his boots off—and slept till morning, when he arose and took breakfast without invitation, politely complimenting the cookery.

The doctors came in the forenoon, but, nothing abashed, the great unknown stayed in the room, making suggestions and proffering advice with the utmost freedom. He played his part so well that the M. D.s thought him a friend of the family, and tolerated his company, although much annoyed by his impertinence. He was a trifle too voluble, however, and Mrs. BROWN asked one of them if it was necessary for him to stay in the room all the time, and then his character came out. In the evening, he came back again, laid aside his overcoat, and prepared for the night's campaign, but Mrs. BROWN quietly showed him to the door, and he left, and has not come back yet to look after the case, which he had previously deserted of Mrs. BROWN should be given up to him before he would deliver an opinion.

By order of the Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

Undefined Ailments.

There are many ailments, trying in their nature, but the symptoms of which are not sufficiently specific to enable physicians to classify them under any particular head. As a general rule they arise from a general debility of the whole organization, but their primary cause, in at least three cases out of five, is a lack of brisk vital action in the stomach and liver. Stimulate and tone the relaxed digestive and secretive organs, and bodily ease, health and vigor will follow the treatment. Among all the medicines which have been recommended as conducive to this end, none has been administered with such uniform and entire success as HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.

Its ingredients were selected from the vegetable kingdom, originally, with a view to the invigoration of the physique and the constitution, and also for their anti-bilious and slightly laxative properties. Twenty odd years of experience has proved that these herbal restoratives were wisely chosen and have been judiciously apportioned in this celebrated preparation. Not only as a specific for indigestion and all kindred complaints, but as a household remedy for all the minor ailments incident to humanity, it has obtained a reputation based on unimpeachable testimony, which fairly eclipses that of any other proprietory or official medicine in use.—Advertisement.

THE DEMAND TELLS THE STORY.—From all directions orders for PHALON'S VITALIA, OR SALVATION FOR THE HAIR, come pouring in. All the noxious dyes, &c., go down before it. A year hence they will be unmarketable. The ladies say it is as pleasant to use as a perfumed toilet water, and it is as transparent as crystal. Nothing else reproduces so perfectly the original hue of the hair.—Advertisement.

CHRISTMAS APPEAL FOR POOR CHILDREN.

The CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY has many thousands of poor children under its charge, very many of them half clad, barefooted, ill-fed, without friends or home. It desires to make at least one day, CHRISTMAS, a happy day to them all. Who will help us on that day to lay a plentiful dinner before these hungry children? And above all, who will give a homeless child a HOME? The cost of this best of all Christmas presents is about $15.

There were during the past year in our five Lodging Houses 12,919 different boys and girls, and 121,624 lodgings and 135,394 meals were supplied; 2,739 were sent to good homes, mainly in the West.

In the nineteen Day and eight Evening Industrial Schools were 6,813 children who were taught and partly fed and clothed.

We appeal to all who are fortunate for these unfortunates; to all who love children for these children of poverty.

Provisions or clothing can be sent to the central office, No. 19 East 4th-st., New-York. Gifts of money may be sent to either of the undersigned.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

Great Winter Sale of Rural Property.

ANDREW WILSON, Jr., has inaugurated the somewhat perilous undertaking of selling country property on a large scale in the month of December. His first sale took place at Madison, N. J., yesterday, and notwithstanding all the disadvantages of the season, the enterprise may be safely pronounced a perfect success. Mr. WILSON had laid out about sixty-five acres of land, to which he gave the name of North Lawn, close by the village of Madison, on the Morris and Essex Railroad, into eighty plots, varying in size from 50 feet by 200, to 2½ acres, with broad avenues cut through and graded, and the whole prepared for immediate building. These plots he disposed of yesterday at public auction, S. DINGEE and JOHNSON & MILLER acting as auctioneers. The terms of sale had one novel feature. Twenty-five per cent. of the consideration was taken in an obligation to execute such work as may be agreed upon, at customary rates, to be performed in the months of February, March, April and May, in the counties of Morris, New-Jersey; Staten Island or Westchester, New-York. A large tent was erected on the ground, and an ample collation provided. A special train from the City took three crowded cars to Madison, and many people from the surrounding country attended the sale. Promptly at 1 o'clock the bidding began. Twelve lots, fronting on the avenue which passes by the property from the village of Madison, each measuring 50 feet by 200, were readily taken at prices varying from $250 to $300 for each lot. Lots in the rear of these brought $150 to $200. Lots of the same size, on the lowest portion of the land, were sold for $75 to $100, while those on the highest part brought from $300 to $650 each. The larger plots, measuring about 130x360, were sold for $225 to $425, while those containing 2 or 2½ acres were struck down for $175 to $310. One having a house upon it brought $3,550. The whole property brought an aggregate sum of $25,000.

One large lot, 230 by 130 feet, is presented by Mr. WILSON for the purpose of a church and school, and is to be deeded to trustees appointed by a majority of the lot owners. The whole transaction was conducted in a liberal manner, and deserved the success with which it was crowned.

OF ILLINOIS,

PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST PAYABLE IN GOLD AT THE FARMERS' LOAN AND TRUST COMPANY, NEW-YORK. COUPONS PAYABLE APRIL AND OCTOBER 1.

FREE OF GOVERNMENT TAX.

THESE BONDS CAN BE REGISTERED.

CAPITAL STOCK.....$3,000,000.
TOTAL ISSUE OF BONDS.....$2,000,000.

Length of road, 117 5-100 miles. The bonds are limited to less than $18,000 per mile, and are secured by a First Mortgage on the entire property of the Company, which cost about $40,000 per mile, and which, we can say with the utmost confidence, will be worth soon after the completion of the road at least double its cost. The consolidation of this line with the Indianapolis, Crawfordsville and Danville Road, places over two hundred miles under one management, and furnishes still further security to the bondholders, these bonds having been assumed (a virtual guarantee) by the consolidated Company, under the name of the Indianapolis, Bloomington and Western Railroad Company. This is an east and west road, connecting with direct lines to Boston, New-York, Philadelphia and Baltimore on the east, and with the Pacific and other roads on the west. It runs through the richest and most populous district of Illinois, the local business of which will be more than sufficient to sustain it, while the through business (which will be limited only by the capacity of the road) must make it one of the best paying railways in the country.

TWENTY-TWO MILES ONLY REMAIN UNFINISHED.

The work is being pushed radidly forward, and TRAINS WILL BE RUNNING OVER THE ENTIRE LINE DURING THE ENSUING MONTH.

About three-quarters of the Loan has been taken by actual investors. We continue to offer, for the present, the balance at 95 and accrued interest in currency.

The high premiums which the stock of all the East and West roads in Illinois commands justify the belief that the stock of this road will also soon sell above par, thus making the convertible clause of the Bond a valuable option.

All marketable securities received in exchange at the highest market rates. Bonds forwarded by express free of charge. Pamphlets containing full particulars furnished on application by the undersigned financial agents of the Company,

A SEVEN PER CENT GOLD LOAN.
$6,500,000.

The Kansas Pacific Railway, now in successful operation from Kansas City to Sheridan, proposes to build an extension to Denver, Colorado. The Government has granted Three Million of Acres of the finest lands in Kansas and Colorado, which are mortgaged for the security of a loan of $6,500,000.

This loan is secured in the most effectual manner. It represents a road in profitable operation, and will open the trade of Central Rocky Mountain country, and connect it with the great markets of the East. It is considered to be one of the best loans in the market, EVEN BETTER IN SOME RESPECTS THAN GOVERNMENT SECURITIES.

The loan has thirty years to run, principal and interest payable in gold, semi-annually, seven per cent. The coupons will be payable semi-annually in either Frankfort, London or New-York, and will be free from Government taxation. The bonds for the present are sold in currency at 96, with accrued interest.

THE FOLLOWING NOTICE HAS been sent to the President of the Stock Exchange by the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company:

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 18, 1869.

To the President of the Stock Exchange, New-York:

SIR: To comply with the third article of your by-laws, I hereby give you notice of our intention to issue $5,000,000 of convertible seven per cent. bonds, free of taxes, which we have negotiated at par, without commissions. One-half of said bonds are convertible at any time after their issue, and the other half after Jan. 1, 1872.

The purchasers are required to take the bonds as follows, viz.:

1,000,000 January, 1870. } Convertible after issue.
1,000,000 July 15, 1870.
1,000,000 Jan. 15, 1871.
1,500,000 in 1871 and 1872, as required, on 60 days' notice. } Convertible after Jan. 1 1872.

The object of this issue of bonds is to provide the means to complete several branch roads in course of construction, to provide additional rolling stock and the necessary consequent enlargement of workshops, wharves for the shipment of coal, new engine houses, sidings, &c.

I believe the foregoing information is in strict conformity with your request. Very respectfully,

(Signed) FRANKLIN B. GOWEN, President.

7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS

OF THE

BURLINGTON, CEDAR RAPIDS AND MINNESOTA RAILROAD COMPANY,

FIRST MORTGAGE AND CONVERTIBLE,

AND ARE PROTECTED BY A

LIBERAL SINKING FUND.

RUN FIFTY YEARS; PRINCIPAL PAYABLE IN COIN; INTEREST PAYABLE AT NEW-YORK OR LONDON, FREE OF GOVERNMENT TAX. THEY YIELD NEARLY 10 PER CENT CURRENCY, WHILE THE FIVE-TWENTIES PAY ONLY 8¼ PER CENT.

These bonds are only issued upon each section of the road as fast as the same is completed and in successful operation. Two and a half millions of dollars have been expended on the road. Eighty-three miles are about completed and equipped, and already show large earnings, and the remainder of the line is rapidly progressing toward completion.

The State of Iowa, through which this road runs, is one of the richest agricultural sections in America. Its population is large, and extending with surprising rapidity; and its immense yield of grain, pork, wool and all other agricultural products, creates a pressing demand for the construction of this road, which affords the best possible guarantee for the bondholders, especially as it runs through the wealthiest and most thickly populated section of the State.

The road also runs through the rich and growing State of Minnesota. Reference to the map of the United States will show that this road passes through the most enterprising and growing portion of the West, and forms one of the great trunk lines in direct communication with New-York, Chicago and St. Louis, being to the latter city 90 miles nearer to Northern Iowa and all portions of the State of Minnesota than by any other road now built or projected, and also the nearest route from Central and Southern Iowa.

The buyer of these bonds is therefore guaranteed, by a great business already in existence, and has not to run any of the contingencies which always attend the opening of roads into new and unsettled country.

We offer the bonds for the present at 95 and accrued interest. We recommend them to investors and officers of financial institutions, who desire to change their high-priced investments for a security which presents every element of safety, and at the same time yields a much higher rate of interest. It is a wooden pavement, the chief peculiarity of which is that it is laid on a foundation of sand, into which, between the blocks of wood, wedges are driven by which the sand is compressed so as to give it a firmness equal, it is claimed, to that of stone. The moisture of the earth keeps the wooden blocks and wedges constantly humid so that they cannot rot, the air from without being excluded by a filling of coal tar and gravel laid between them and covering the surface. The contractors agree to keep it in perfect order for twenty years, for 1½ cents per square foot per annum, and to make a sufficient deposit with the proper authorities to guarantee their fulfillment of such contract for the time specified.
